Schools

HENRY PETERSON & Co., Publishers. PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1868. Price 65.50 A Year, in Advance. No. 319 Walnut St., Philad's.

THE LONG TO-MORROW.

Old age that strains the web of life,
And checks that shuttle's eager paces.
Brings rest from all the world's vain strife,
And leaves an old man to old faces;
And still my heart beats warmly yet,
Although grandohildren play before me,
And I can easily forget
That eighty summers have passed o'er me.

Sweet maiden, with the downcast eyes, To whom my grandson gayly chatters,
And treasures up the low replies
You make on many foolish matters;
I wonder when a dearer name
He whispers through those shining trease
If you'll believe I've done the same,
And thrilled a heart with my caresses!

And when my youngest joined his ship, So tearful at the sad home faces, Shrunk at his mother's quivering lip, The while he sighed for far-off places I wonder if he ever thought
I had my dreams of earth and glory;
But silvered hairs have sternly taught

And often in the mazy throng,
When little fect are lightly dancing,
And as each maiden whirls along.
The bonny eyes give sweeter glancing,
I sit apart and idly dream
That my fair youth has not departed,
And other hopes and fancies seem

The worth of that heroic story.

And other hopes and fancies seem To leave me far more tender hearted.

My life's gay Spring had many joys, The Summer brought me love's first roses, The Autumn gave me my brave boys, I wait until the Winter closes. Each season has in order brought

The mingled flowers of joy and sorrow, and many an earnest lesson taught— And many an earnest lesson taught-And so I wait the long to morrow.

THE

ELECTOR AND THE MONEY PRINCE.

BY LOUISE MUHLBACH,

AUTHOR OF " FREDERICK THE GREAT AND HIS COURT," ETC., ETC.

CHAPTER I.

THE YOUNG PRINCE AND THE JEW BOY.

"We are through now, are we not? Now, can we go back to the palace for dinner?"

"No, my prince, not yet; we have not yet viewed all the objects of interest in this great free town of Frankfort, and as we must journey away again immediately after dinner, it is needful to get through first."

"Eat what can there be yet to see?"
sked the Prince with a yawn, "I do assure you, Herr Hofmeister*, I shall forget receily in front of our two travellers, he bestowed upon them from out his little flashing black eyes a sullen, defaut gaze.

"It is needless to come here into the Jew his subjects—that he should be magnanimous, unrevengeful, and always ready to forget injury?

"I did not say forget, but forgive prince," replied the baron, smiling. "But I see that you have in fact a good memory, and I do not despair of your recollecting everything we have viewed here in Frankfort, nor of your profiting by your first flight into the world."

Tell me, though, Herr Barou," inquired the prince, "where are you leading me precisely—through what narrow, miserable streets are we passing here? Do you see that great iron gateway in the middle of the street? What a dreadful looking place it is on the other side of the gateway? When on the other side of the gateway? Where are we, Herr Baron, and what can there be seeing in these abominable, narrow rth seeing in these abominable, narrow cets?"

Prince, something only too well worth ing: human misery!" replied the baron, emply, and as he paused in front of the stranged voice, the doors of the adjacent "Prince, something only too well worth seeing: human misery/" replied the baron, solemnly, and as he paused in front of the great iron gates, suspended from the dingy, gray posts, he grasped the hand of the prince, and gazed with earnest loving exn into the wondering countenance of Prince," he said, "you shall this day re-Prince," he said, "you shall this day re-ceive the second great precept. The first you received in the halls of the Senate. You stood upon the balcony where the emperor shone forth in the highest earthly grandeur, where, exalted above the rest of humanity, receiving laws from none but God and his own conscience, he displayed himself to his own conscience, he displayed himself to his people, who received him with loud rejoic-

THE BOY ROTHSCHILD AND THE YOUNG PRINCE.

you that you must ever remain mindful that even the beggar is a human being, and that in the eves of God the poorest and most wretched creature is worth as much as the richest lord and the proudest Emperor. You shall now see the Gletta, the old, humble Jew quarter of Frankfort."

"The Jew quarter!" cried the boy involuntarily, drawing back a pace. "But I don't want to see it, Herr Hofmeister, and there is nothing remarkable to see in ugly, old pawn-broking Jews, living inside their dirty houses. I cannot bear the Jews, for I know that they are all wretched, pitiful creatures, whose contact defiles, and who, therefore, cannot even live in the same streets or houses with Christians. Every Jew is a beggar, a miser, a pawn-broker and a asked the Prince with a yawn. "I do assure you. Herr Hofmeister", I shall forget half that I have seen—it is too much for me to remember, and my noble mother will be displeased if I retain nothing of all that she has allowed use to have the opportunity of seeing."

"You must diligently exercise your memory, my prince," replied the royal tutor, Baron von Emptich, in an earnest voice. "A good memory is an excellent attribute, especially in a prince, and as you are deatined one day to be a ruler, you must learn, before all allowed.

black eyes a sullen, deflant gaze.

"It is needless to come here into the Jew city with the little 'mosje' prince,' he said, in the common, almost incomprehensible jargon of the Frankfort Jew dialect. "The jargon of the Frankfort Jew statect. "The little manniken of a prince has seen enough if he has seen the splendor of the senate-hall and the glory of the emperor, and if his heart has been puffed up with the wish that he may one day be a powerful emperor since he is already a prince. But the glory of the Jew city he does not need to see, for the clove of majority many the state. of the Jew city he does not need to see, for the glory of misfortune the young 'maspe' does not yet understand, and he can learn nothing of it with his dull, haughty prince's heart. He calls us here at our very gate beg-gars and cheats, and is yet brought here by his tutor to learn of us. Hearken, all ye chil-dren, hearken, Barneh, Veilehen, Schmuel-and Eva, hearken, Adam and Rachel, Jacob and Abraham, Blumchen and Laban, hearken houses were burst open, and a whole troupe of tattered, black-eyed, black haired chil-dren rushed in wild confusion out into the street. "What did he say? How has he reviled us, Mayer Anselm?" they asked, shricking and laughing among themselves, whilst their sparkling eyes were uplifted to the blonde, blue-eyed boy who timidly drew up close to the tall form of his tutor in panuful confusion.

He said," shricked the boy, "that we especially in a prince, and as you are descended one day to be a ruler, you must learn, before all else, to expand your memory. A prince should forget nothing; he must preserve in memory the most trifling as well as the most important particulars."

"I asked you for no alms, and I accept nothing for nothing;"

No speaking, he flung it with a contemptuous movement far out into the street, from a midst whose dirt it shone brilliantly dirty garments, with a black cap upon his as a silver star. The children, who closely a through the color of the calm face of his tutor. "A prince should forget nothing? Did you not prince should forget nothing? nothing heard but loud cries, abusive words and threats. Each of the children had claims to the gold piece. Each tried to wrost it from the other and constitute himelf sole passesor, and whilst the little girls inally withdraw, there arose a severe conally withdraw, there arose a severe con-et among the boys. This sight was so amoning and interesting to the little prince that he forgot his an noyance, and advancing from behind his teacher gazed with sparkling eyes and laugh my mouth upon the motley group.

The little Mayer Asselm wrinkled hirow, and the smiles of the prince sceme o pain him.

"Herr Baron," he said abruptly, "your sighness desired to show the young prince he Jew quarters. If you wish I will be rour guide, and show you all the glory and splendor of our city, for our glory is our misery, and our splendor is our dirt and our poverty. Shall I show you these, most gra poverty. Shall I s cious Herr Baron?

cious Herr Baron?"

"Yes, show or these, be our guide," said the baron, extending his hand to the principand preparing to follow the boy, who now with carnest demeaner and dignified bearing preceded them in the full consciousness of a dignity as circums.

And through dirty streets and dismal, so rowful corners the boy led the distinguished visitors of the Jew city. Here and ther he paused before certain houses, and related dryly how many people lived penned up to gether in this dirty hole, how much wretch edness and misery was packed together i this house without sun and light, who-little mean windows were plastered over But the hand of the princely tutor was at this moment placed with a hasty movement with smoked paper, from out whose open ne exhalation streamed into linger ends? doors a loaths ings. Standing upon this balcony, and depicting to you the greatness, sublimity and splendor of a German Emperor, I told you that you should be ever mindful that even the enperor was only an erring, fallible, weak mortal, notwithstanding his purple weak mortal, notwithstanding his purple robe and earthly splendor. Now, as we stand before these dismal gates, which form the entrance to these dingy streets, with their black, ugly houses—now that we are about to see the contrast to the Senate-house, I tell you that you must ever remain mindful that this noise, or we shall be compelled to turn away again, and that would be to your own disadvantage, for we could then leave behind no alms for your sick and poor."

"Her Baron, I will be silent," marmured the boy, whose excited face had now as richest lord and the proudest Emperor. You shall now see the Gletto, the old, humble Jow quarter of Frankfort."

"The Jew quarter!" cried the boy in-sked the baron.

The boy looked up with an expression of place on the lock of the city of not withstanding their poverty and debasement, how every father was obliged to purchase even the life of his obild of the city, and debasement, how every father was obliged to purchase even the life of his obild of the city, and debasement, how every father was obliged to purchase even the life of his obild of the city, and for every member of his family hal to pay a high poll-tax. But as they stood before the lofty temple, whose walls looked so gray, gloomy and repellant, the cyes of the Jewish boy sparkled yet more brilliantly, and an expression of plant was obliged to purchase even the life of his obild of the city, and for every member of his family hal to pay a high poll-tax. But as they stood before the lofty temple, whose walls looked so gray, gloomy and repellant, the cyes of the Jewish boy sparkled yet more bri "Were you listening to our conversation?"

The boy looked up with an expression of keen defiance.

"Listening? No, but I heard it all! I was standing behind the gate post as you both came this way, and without wishing to do so I was compelled to overhear your words of wisdom and the stupid remarks of the hittle prince. But tell me, Herr Baron, what prince is the little man? From what line of ancestors is he descended, and what say fell from heaven to sit upon his breast as house cock and crow forth his princely sublimity?"

"You promised me to be silent," said the baron, gravely. "Keep your promise, now, and let us pass on."

And as he uttered these words he took from his pocket a gold piece, and pressed it into the boy's hand. Mayer Anselm started convolsively, and a cloud of wrath swept over the brow of the little man.

"I am not a beggar, my lord," he cried.
"I asked you for no aims, and I accept nothing for nothing it."

The little prince colored as Mayer Anselm, his piercing gaze beat, upon him.

The little prince colored as Mayer Ar selm, his piercing gaze bent upon him, should ever again feel so curious to see the sent forth this secrewful wail, but the Jewish quarter in Frankfort apply to me, baron looked with astonishment upon the and I shall be most happy to gratify you."

though he was only a bartering Jew, he knew the Talmud and the books of Laws by heart, and in the long winter evenings when we sat starving in the dark, he has told me so many marvellous things that it grew light in our dark room, and I no longer felt the pangs of houser."

mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Jewish quarter at I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I am Mayer Anselm Rothschild, and I live with my mother in the Jewish quarter at the law of the live with my mother in the Jewish quarter at I live with my mother in the Jewish boy with tears in his eyes. He is dead, and my mother will som follow him, for she as sick and wretched. The physician says the might perhaps be better again if she would get away from this alley into a better

"You are a singular little man," said the baron, laughing. "How old are you?" "Just ten years, your highness, for I was born in the year 1743."

"That is my birthday !" cried the prince,

"Just ten years, your highness, for I was born in the year 1743."

"That is my birthday!" cried the prince, eagerly.

"I beg pardon for having been so bold as to be born in the same year with mogic, the prince," said little Mayer Anselm, in derisive submissiveness. "I would that I had been born seventeen hundred and forty-three years sconer, for then I, too, had been a prince, for I am of the house of Levi, the race of high pricets and mighty rulers! Beg pardon, once more, mogic prince! And here we are again at the gates, and the distinguished guests have now seen all that is to be seen here—so they will, no doubt, be in haste to depart from the dirty Jew city. There is seven o'clock striking! That is the hour for closing the gates of the Jew quarter. So make haste, your honors, make haste."

"Well done, little Anselm Mayer," said the baron, after having exchanged a few words aside with the prince, "listen to what I have to say to you in the name of his highness. You are a bright, clever boy, and the prince is pleased with you, and desires to grant you a favor."

"Yes, I would like very much to grant you a favor," repeated the prince politely. "If you leave the horrid old Jew streets and become a Christian, I will ask my father, the Elector of Hesse, to have you taught a trade, so that you may earn an honest livelihood as shoemaker or baker."

"I thank you, I am of too lofty a birth to learn a mean handlwork!" cried the boy proudly. "I am of too honest parentage to barter my religion as princes and princesses do, and I have too much love for the dirty old Jew streets ever to forsake them. Here will I live and die, here will I become a millionaire."

"You a rich man, a millionaire!" laughed the prince. "My noble mother has often told me that a million was a great deal of money. How can I go about it?" asked Meyer Anselm defiantly. "I will carn it."

"How can I go about it?" asked Meyer Anselm defiantly. "I will carn it."

"In what way, though?"

"How can I go about it?" asked Meyer Anselm defiantly. "I will carn your service and try to dispose of it at a fair price. But now, gentlemen, I ask for money. I have taken you around for a money. I have taken you around for a whole hour.

"Here are three florins," said the baron, dropping the money into the boy's outstretched hand.

"Three florins, a small contribution to my million," said the boy laughing. "I thank you."

"So, then, it does not offend you now for us to give you money?" asked the prince im-

"I have had no money given me," replied the boy, "I have honestly earned money of you. How now! there comes the town-bailiff to shut the gates. Now see that you But if you strange boy.

"You are indeed a remarkably learned little man," he said. "Whence have you hearned all these things, my son?"

"My father taught them to me," replied the boy. "My father twas very learned, although he was only a bartering Jew, he knew the Talmud and the books of Laws by heart.

I live with my mother in the Jewish quarted in the lower with respect to the lower with respect to the Castle of Hanau."

"And I shall be most happy to gattly you."

"And you, should you ever be in trouble and require aid, come to the Castle in Hanau," said the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I shall be most happy to gattly you."

"And you, should you ever be in trouble and require aid, come to the Castle in Hanau," said the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Castle in Hanau," said the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Laws and the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Castle in Hanau," said the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

"And I shall be most happy to gattly you."

And you, should you ever be in trouble and require aid, come to the Castle in Hanau," said the prince, "apply to the porter and demand an audience with my mother in the Castle of Hanau."

selm turned away, snapped his long, thin fingers, and muttered to himself; its a right stupid fellow. Were he in my place he would never in his whole life be a mil-

she might perhaps be better again if she could get to Italy and the sea. But we are poor, poor people, and can do nothing but die in our misery. Itesides even were we rich, feeling death at hand, mother would not leave this dismal alley and our old tumble slown house. She will die where father died."

"But what will you do when your mother is dead?" asked the baron compassionately. "What will become of you, poor boy?"

"What will become of you, poor boy?"

"What will become a wealthy merchant."

"A wealthy merchant? Where will you get your riches from? Where do your treasures he concealed?" here in my place to work the moment. "Meanne, will rejoice that I bring her money!"

"Here they lie concealed, Herr Baron, cried the boy, langhing; "here in my head and here in my ten fingers. Do you not know, Herr Baron, that the Just has a charm that lies concealed in his fingers, and so soon as with stern will he stretches forth his hand, it causes the ducats and florus to dance out of every chest and spring on to his finger ends?"

ROBER SE

10000 eyes, have compassion upon me! My heart will burst with grief if you lie there much longer. Mother, mother! open your eyes, eak to me."

And lo! the heart-rending lament of the boy had power to recall to its mortal coil the already upward soaring spirit, the mother's heart struggling in the agony of death began to beat once more at the sound of the suppli-cating voice of her child. She slowly raised the heavy lids, she gazed with a look of love into the agonized face of her son, whose tears fell so hot and burning upon her cold brow, as though these scorching drops could recall her again to life; her lips, which had been tightly compressed in the death spasm now relaxed, and she began to whisper low, distinct words. The box suppressed his soles, he resolutely

The boy suppressed his sobs, he resolutely forced back his tears, he held his breath, and listened with beating heart to the words which trembled like the breath of angels upon the dying woman's lips.

Suddenly she started up with a quick, convulsive movement, and gazed with great wide-opened eyes, with an expression of ineffable love upon her son.

ble love upon her son.

Mother, dear mother!" whispered the bry, "if you love me you will stay with me.
Ah, do not go from me, do not leave me

Love, the mighty mother-love, gave her strength to uplift her arms and cutwine them about the neck of her child, to press him to her heart fervently as though him to her heart fervently as though she would never forsake him, as though she would never forsake him, as though she would never forsake him, as though she would never forsake him within the protection of her mother's heart.

"Farewell" she cried in a loud voice, "farewell, my son! Remain true to the God of thy fathers, true to thyself and—"

More she failed to utter, her head sank last sigh escaped her lips. Then all looked up entreatingly at her father who sat epiposite her in the old blackened library are chair.

She is dead! she is dead!" shricked the "She is dead! she is dead!" shricked the boy, casting himself upon his knees, prebsing his mother's hand within his own, and gazing at her with looks of inexpressible grief, and at the same time of holy ave. He dared not speak, neither weep nor lament, for he saw how there beamed upon the face of the dead, as it were, a ray of transfiguration, and how the great mystery of death and of eternal life was revealed upon these first changing and then fixed lineaments.

Twelve years had passed away since those days when Mayer Aaselu's mother had died. Twelve years had passed away. They had been rich in historical events, in uprisings and storms. For seven long years a bloody war had filled the German land with mourning and desolation, it had deprived Maria Theresa of her "beloved Schlesia," and given it over to the "evil man;" it had think I do not know with whom you are in-Germany was changed during these twelve years; in the Jewish quarters at Frankford alone had all remained unaltered. There at fallone had all remained unaltered. There at its head to see that Gudula is young and with the dirty, iron folding gates, there were the same little mean, dismal houses in which lived thickly period together the Jews, the poor slaves of prejudice, the stigmatized of public opinion. There prevalled still in the narrow streets the same confused pell-mell of traffic and hartering, the lively intercourse between neighbors standing before their doors, or accest—it was not been dead to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in the selfers, "the saints." We trust that the coming Peace Convention will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will see that if ever there is to be Peace in the world, it can only come as a result of that peaceable, moderate and charitable spirit, which acknowledges that men may differ from us in their customs, manners, political institutions, and charitable spirit, which acknowledges that men may differ from us to the marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members will be marked by a different spirit—and that its members in the intensity of the proposed of lively intercourse between neighbors ding before their doors, or accost-each other diagonally across the et. There might be heard the clatter and noise of the children playing merrily in gloomy streets, and making the uses resound with their fresh laughter

In the Jewish quarter these twelve years had changed nothing, only set the impress of age upon the brows of men and women, and made youths and maidens of the children. Mayer Anselm was now a stately, vigorous youth of two and twenty, Cudula fifth was now a maiden of eighteen years, slender and dainty, gentle as the tenderest maiden, and at the same time proud as a queen. Her plain garment flowed about her as though lem of perpetual motion. His machine protection of purple that adorned her duces electricity, which causes motion, and person, the black hair which fell about her the motion in turn generates electricity.

The Scripture, more humble, and consequently more moderate.

As in the old times, the "Religious" wars, employment.

six years of age, of that grave, supsible air that want and early deprivation leave as their impress upon the children of poverty. She, too, had her hands clasped, and seemed to be praying; her large black eyes were aplifted to be aven, and great tears trickled alovely down over her cheeks.

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, NOVE 14, 1868. head in thick ringlets was secured above her forebead with a scarlet ribbon, forming a kind of coronet, which superbly became her broad, white brow, her flashing eyes and proud, maidenly expression, the beautiful oval of her soble face, the pale, transparent checks and the energetic, rosy lips. A painter had seen her as she passed one day through the streets in her simple, yet tasky anticked the boy, rashing to the bed.

"Mother, why do you not answer me ! why do you not look at me and feel giad to see me home?"
But the sick woman seemed not to hear his words, she continued moaning, and her eyes did not open.

Mayer Anselm's gaze turned in horror upon the little girl, and he laid his trembling hand upon her shoulder. "Gudula!" he murraured anxiously, "why does she not answer me? Gudula what alls my memme?"
"She is iii, Mayer Anselm, very iil," sobbed the child. "This morning when you went out to your business you asked me to go stay with your mother until you returned. When I came into the room I found her lying unconscious upon the floor and she heard nothing of all." consented to serve as model for a great painting the artist was about to execute. Post and of Lady's Friend sleave satisfy a first he had intended to convert the beautiful Jewish maiden into a Judith, to anobbed the child. "This morning when you went out to your business you asked me to go stay with your mother until you returned. When I came into the room I found her lying unconacious upon the floor, and she heard nothing of all my entreaties for her to speak to me. So I ran out after the neighbors, and they lifted your mother into bed, and my father was here, too, but he said nothing could be done, and that I should only sit here and pray until she became quite still."

"But she will not become quite still:"
"But she will not become quite still:"
"But she will not become quite still:"
"She will speak again and open her eyes once more and look upon me. Mother, mother! listen to me! Mayer Anselm has come home, and has brought money with him, much money, and he can fetch you whatever you wish to eat. Ab, look at me, doar mother, do not lie there with closed one in Frankfort knew her, and when Gudia passed through the streets, the boys would call out: "There goes pretty Gudia, the Jewish Queen!"

And many a distinguished cavalier, and many a wealthy gentleman who otherwise had never thought of entering the dirty Jewish quarter, came now to look up pretty Gudula, and under the Jewish quarter, came now to look up pretty Gudula, and under the pretext of doing busi-ness with the father, to make flattering speeches to the daughter. But pretty Gudula treated all with a proud reserve and coldness; and none of the cava-liers had ever dared enter a second time the lowly dwelling of Gudula and her half blind owly dwelling of Gudula and her half blind father. Not merely admirers and adorers had come to the house, but also suitors who sought pretty Gudula's hand in marriage, and wished to lead her away from the Jewish quarter into the gay, brilliant streets of the free city, if the heautiful Jewish Queen could only readys to become a Chris. Queen could only resolve to become a Chris-tian, Gudula had indignantly declined every such proposal, and her father was too deyout a Jew to oppose her decision. But upon this day there had come another—on this day there had come a rich Jewish merchant from Hayau, and had offered his hand to pretty Gudula, and once more she had re-pulsed the suitor with a proud "No." This "no." however, had not met with the approval of her father, but had on the contrary, excited his utmost rage and most violent ill-humor. Gudula had borne the outburst with calm silence, only bowing her head low over her work as though this were a tempest she would meekly endure until it leather arm chair.

"Father," she said, in a voice of supplication, "if you scold me so I must weep, and if I weep I cannot sew. I must finish bey, casting himself upon his knees, probsing his mother's hand within his own, and gazing at her with looks of inexpressible grief, and at the same time of holy awe. He dared not speak, neither weep nor lament, for he saw how there beamed upon the face of the dead, as it were, a ray of transfiguration, and how the great mystery of death and of eternal life was revealed upon these first changing and then fixed lineaments.

But, then, when the face of his mother had become fixed and cold, when the last ray of life had died away, then came the full consciousness of what he had lost once more upon the boy, and he wept and la mented aboud.

"I am alone, all alone "was the great cry of grief that escaped his breat" I have no one to love me, no one in the whole world!"

"Mayer Anselm, I love you" cried at this moment a trembling voice beside him, and two soft, fragtant lips were pressed upon his check. "De not say you are alone. Mayer Anselm, for little Gulula is with you. There is a man desire, and she will always stay with you. There are desired and she will always stay with you. There are distinguished as any countess. It is almost functionally and two soft, fragtant lips were pressed upon the face of the dead, as it were, a ray of transfiguration, and she will always stay with you. There are distinguished as any countes. By the counter are distinguished as any countess. By the look of the day be devoted to the active very to every to be a very it over to the Countes Tettenhorn. She is a very half to ver to return the work this evening, to carry it over to return to receive in one need to be a very to result of the counters. And, in order to do this, the lessons must half to not to receive in one need to work."

"If you seedd more very in the counter to dethily the work of the Counters two returns the work this evening, and if I do not to receive in one of the work t

CHAPTER II.

PRETTY GEDULA.

Twelve years had passed away since those precured for Prussia a new province, and for her king, Frederick the Second, the surname of "The Great." The condition of all Germany was charged during these twelve years; in the Jewish quarters at Frankfort alone had all remained unaltered. There at line at the province were to the Gudula is young and given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula is young and given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula is young and given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula is young and given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula is young and given ber heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in his head to see that Gudula has heart to a man who has no eyes in heart to omes Mayer Ausein from across the street.

If you say more—if you add another word and disgrace your daughter in his presence, I swear to you, by the God of our fathers, that I will go where the Main is the deepest and impair in "

tralda, Jr., claims to have solved the prob-

TERMS.

The terms of THE POST are the same as those of that well known magazine. THE LADY'S FIGEND -inorder that the clubs may be made up of the paper and magazine conjoint; when so desired—and are as rge Prendum Steel en $4.00; Four et ne grains $13.00. one of THE LAD raon getting up a craving in addition.

SEWING MACHINE Premium. For 20 sub scribers at $2.50 apiece—or for 20 subscribers and $ —we will send either Graver & Baker's No. 30, Whoeler & Wilson's No. 3 Machine, price $55. Art
Jan. 1, 1859, we will send only the Graver & Bak
No. 33 Machine, price $55. By remitting the diffence of price in cash, any higher priced Machine whe sent. Every subscriber in a Fremium List, it assuch as he pays $2.50, will get the Fremiam Ste Kroravine.

HENRY PETERSON & CO.,

We still have a good supply of back num bers of The Post on hand, containing the early portions of "THE QUEEN OF THE SA-VANNAH." and "ST. GEORGE AND THE DRAGON."

We printed a large extra edition, in order that all new subscribers might be accommodated with these spleudid stories.

GOING AHEAD!

Our old friends will be pleased to hear that THE POST is rapidly increasing in circulation.

In fact it could hardly be otherwise—for while we make a first-class paper, our prices are far cheaper than the usual rates; in fact, very little above the price of the white paper and printing.

We depend upon getting the largest kind of a circulation, to compensate us; and we are satisfied with a reasonable compensation, having no desire to drive the fastest team, or live in the biggest house in the country.

EDUCATION.

We see it stated that the German school authorities have determined to have no afternoon classes. They have ascertained that three or four hours' clear-headed morning study, without any mental tasks in the afternoon, leads to better results than the old system. It would be well if the hours of study were shortened in our schools. Too much study not only dwarfs the intellect but damages the physical health. Let the first half of the day be devoted to the acquiring of book-knowledge, and the last half to the gaining of bodily strength and Mayer Anselm, for little Gudula is with you, and she will always stay with you. I love you, Mayer Anselm."

Wherefore do you not love him?"

Assembly Building, in this city, on the 19th and 20th of this month. The programme of the meetings "will embrace the consideration not love him; because you love Mayer Australia, "eligious, and social reform; the selm..." ad 20th of this month. The programme of a meetings "well embrace the cannideration of political religious, and social reform; the west Union with Foreign Peace Societies; a take of International Law; Busenmant and Arbitration; the Indians; Equal Rights, at the four questions before the Berne Peace largest.

We have found a tolerably large propor ion of avowed "Peace men" about the most ugnacions individuals in the world—and ull of that spirit which finally leads to great wars and fightings. We have found them renerally averse to tolerating any customs or opinions which were not their own, deter-We have found them mined that all men should accept their own standards of right, and in fact often so nar-rew and bigsted that they could not imagine how other people could be honest in holding epinions differing from those held by them-of Charity that I will go where the Main is the deepest and jump in."

And her cheeks all aglow, Gudula, still panting with excitement, seated herself in her rush-chair by the window, and took up her sewing.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The A man in New York lives with his first wife and five mothers-in-law, all in one house. those who differ from them as to what they consider important truths, than people who not being so good, are, like the publican in not being so good, are, like the publican in the Scripture, more humble, and conse-

so-called, were the bloodiest, so, in modern times, the wars for the promulgation of relives. You may have a portion of the Truth—but do not imagine that you have the whole Truth, or that it is even possible you should have it. Be kind, be forgiving, be merciful, be tolerant—for in these is the spirit of Peace, and not in a mere promise to abstain from the use of physical force, or in any profession of political or religious faith whatever.

BARBARA FRITCHIE.

In answer to the question which has been raised as to the fact of Barbara Fritchie's existence, a Frederick correspondent writes us as follows. It seems that Mrs. Fritchie was a Pennsylvanian by birth:—

FIEDERICK, MD., Oct. 31, 1868.

Editor of Post,—Mrs. Barbara Fritchie (whose maiden name was Hauer.) was born in Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 34, 1766. She removed to Frederick, Md., when she was fourteen years old, and was married to John fourteen years old, and was married to John Caspar Fritchie in the year 1804. Her husband died in 1849. Mrs. Barbara Fritchie died Dec. 18, 1802. She was buried in the German Reformed burial ground in this place. There is a tombstone to mark her last resting place. place. There is a tombstone to mark her last resting place. Mrs. Barbara Fritchie was in her ninety-seventh year at the time of her death. The house she lived in at the time she waved the flag, and where the other incidents happened. related in Whittier's poem, is still standing, though a portion was washed away by the late flood.

Yours truly, A READER.

The game of croquet, although in some respects new, is little more than an old game revived. It used to be played by the ancient Gauls so universally that the greater portion of the promenades adjoining large towns consisted each of a long alley called the mail—the name of the game being jeu de mail. The latter French received it from their ancestors, the Gauls, and it was introduced into England under Charles II., at the time of the Restoration, after his return from his sojourn in France. The long avenue is front of Buckingham Palace, called the "Mail," or "Mail," derived its name from this game, which was played there.

The Texas herdsmen become so expert in the use of the lasso, that they can ride on their stunted ponies through the city rde on their stunted pomes through the city of Houston, as though on a steeple-chase, picking up with one throw of their rope anything they may happen to want on the sides of the streets. They very seldom miss their aim. They will take up a loaf of bread from the pavement, or a hat from the head of a man waiking in front of them with the greatest ease, while riding at the highest spreed.

LAT A bachelor being rallied for his celibacy, said he had chosen several wives, but that their husbands having established a prior claim to them, he yielded to the usages of society and gave them up.

An Englishman has attained the speed of fifteen miles an hour on a veloci-ocde. Some of our slow railroads will have to look out, if this rate of going become

In the English registration the name of a claimant was struck out because he described himself as a "gentleman," when he was proved to be a tailor.

The Perhaps it may not be generally known that that very distressing disease, Rheumatism, is very often induced by the use of alcoholic liquors. A gentleman in this city was in the habitual use of brandy. He was attacked with Rheumatism. His family was attacked with Rheumatism. His family was attacked with Rheumatism. His family physician being consulted, advised him to abandon the use of brandy. He drank no more for five years, and during that time, had no more rheumatism. He then returned to his brandy, and in three months was again attacked with rheumatism.

The Secretary Seward has a free life ticket.

raved on silver with which he travels over the Eric Railroad. I It was given to him at term as New York, in acknowledgment of his efforts in behalf of the internal improvements of New York.

(Quinn was once at a small dinnerparty. The master of the house, pushing a delicious pudding toward the wit, begged him to taste it. A gentleman had just before greedily helped himself to an immense piece of it. "Pray," said Quinn, looking first at the gentleman's plate and then at the dish, "which is the pudding?"

23° It is related of a certain minister of dish, "which is the pudding?"

It is related of a certain minister of the pudding in the pudding (B)-Maine, who was noted for his long sermons, with many divisions, that one day, when he was advancing among the teens, he reached at length a kind of resting-place in his dis course, when, pausing to take breath, he asked the question, "And what shall I say more?" A voice from the congregation earnestly responded, "Say amen!"

Insects are largely endowed with the faculty of sight; for their eyes, though unable to turn, are infinitely multiplied, and nsate by quantity for their want of a. To give an idea of the numbers some orders possess, I may mention that to one species of butterfly, by no means among the largest, is allotted hearly thirty-five thousand eyes. These are distributed over thousand eyes. These are distributed over every part of the body, and thus, whatever may be the position of the animal, no danger can approach unperceived, as a sentiacl keeps watch in every quarter.

The No snow falls lighter than the snow

age; none heavier, for it never melts.

Twillight.—The evening grew mull every moment, and a melancholy w dull every moment, and a mela dull every moment, and a meanmony sounded through the deserted fields like a distant giant whistling for his house dog.

(P PREACHING.—Writing of preaching and hearing, some one relates that "A lady, recently, in giving her views of the preaching of a minister, to whom she had listened several times, said, 'I thought it was the business of the minister to feed the sheep. This man don't feed us. He only throws clubs and stones at us, and sends us hungry and bleating home."

HIGH-HEELED SHOPS -The corncutters say that the last fashion is a great blessing to them. It gives them constant A Railroad King.

so-called, were the bloodiest, so, in modern times, the wars for the promulgation of moral and political ideas promise to be the most frequent and sanguinary. France, as her Emperor says, "never goes to war but for an idea."

The great and bloody wars of the French Revolution were for political ideas. France, with her new-born notions of social and political equality, was not willing to let the rest of Europe, thinking she was in such great error, was not willing to let the ralone. As the result of the mutual want of Charity, Europe was drenched with human blood.

If you would have peace therefore, preach Charity. Allow to others the same liberty of Thought and Action you claim for yourselves. You may have a portion of the Truth—but do not imagine that you have princely merchants and bankers, the head of a large railroad interest, could reside in New York, and for a number of years lead the double life of a bachelor and a man of family; be known by one name down town, and another name up town; yet so it was. At his hotel and at his office he was found at the namel hours. To his nucleon, home At his hotel and at his office he was found at the usual hours. To his up-town home he came late and went out early. There he was seldom seen. The landlord, the butcher, the grocer and the milkman transacted all their business with the lady. Bills were promptly paid, and no questions asked. The little girls became young ladies. They went to the best boarding-schools in the land. An unexpected crisis came. A clergyman in good standing became acquainted with one of the daughters at her boarding-school. He regarded her with so much interest, that in good standing became acquainted with one of the daughters at her boarding-school. He regarded her with so much interest, that he solicited her hand in marriage. He was referred to the mother. The daughters had raid that their father was a wealthy merchant of New York; but his name did not appear in the Directory, he was not known on 'change. The lover only knew the name by which the daughters were called. The mother was affable, but embarrassed. The gentleman thought something was wrong, and insisted on a personal interview with the father. The time was appointed for the interview. The young man was greatly astonished to discover in the father of the young lady one of the most eminent business men of the city. He gave his consent to the marriage, and promised to do well by the daughter, though he admitted that the mother of the young lady was not his wife. The clergyman was greatly attached to the young women, who was greatly attached to the The clergyman was greatly attached to the young woman, who was really beautiful and accomplished. He agreed to lead her to the altar, if, at the same time, the merchant would make the mother his wife. This was agreed to, and the double wedding was con-summated the same night. The father and mother were first married, and then the father gave away the daughter. The affair created a ten days' sensation. The veil of secrecy was removed. The family took the down-town removed. The family took the down-town name, which was the real one—a name among the most honored in the city. An uptown fashionable mansion was purchased, and fitted up in style. Crowds filled the spacious parlors, for there was just piquancy enough in the case to make it attractive. Splendid coaches of the fashionable filled the street; a dashing company crowded the pavement, and rushed up the steps to enjoy the sights. These brilliant parties continued but short time. The merchant was rotten at heart. All New York was actounded one day at the All New York was astounded one day at the report that the great railroad king had become a gigantic defaulter, and had absconded. His crash carried down fortunes and ed. His crash carried down fortunes and families with his own. Commercial circles yet suffer for his crimes. The courts are still fretted with suits between great corporations and individuals growing out of these transactions. Fashionable New York, which could overlook twenty years of criminal life, could not excuse poverty. It took reprisals for bringing this family into social position by hurling it back into an obscurity from which probably it will never emerge.—From Sanshine and Shadow in New York.

₹ A new proposition is now being made in England for a uniform cheap railway fare, to convey a person for six cents in the third distance; and it is contended that this reduced scale would pay.

The An exchange says tersely of a noted Texan ruffian, that "through the energy of a sheriff he now or paments a rustic grave-

Grapes are bought by the California wine-maker and delivered at his press, clean, for seventy cents per one hundred pounds, and it is stated that in one thousand pounds scarcely one pound of unripe or rotted berries has to be cut out from the bunches. A little fellow was cating some bread mother and said, "Oh, mother, I'm full of glory! There was a sunbeam on my spoon, glory! There was and I swallowed it.'

to A gentleman found a quantity of silk on the street the other day, and on following it up discovered a lady at the other end. G. F. Train writes : - "It is well. In 1872 I shall be President." Even Tom Hood is almost inexcusable such a description of music as this :-Heaven reward the man who first hit upon the very original notion of sawing the inside of a cat with the tail of a horse." Tough Fish Story.-An Alabama paper, speaking of Florida, says:-"There are also numerous small lakes of pure water, filled with fish, some of which are only a few rods in extent, while others are from two to ten miles in length." A railway station master at Rome lately been sentenced to the galleys for five years, because of a collision between two trains started by his orders, and which resulted in the death of five persons.

"Much may be done with a Scotchman if he be caught young?"
"William," said one Quaker to another,

"thee knows I never call anybody names; but. William, if the Mayor of the city were to come to me and say, 'Joshua, I want thee to find me the biggest liar in all Philadelphia,' I would come to thee and put my hand on thy shoulder and say to thee, 'Wil-liam, the Mayor wants to see thee.'"

In Chatsworth, Livingston county, Ilnois, is a beet sugar factory in full operation working up about forty tons of beets daily. They expect soon to work up fifty tons. The per centage of sugar is quite satisfactory and the sugar of good quality. The Reporter says the beets are daily growing better. Beets continue to improve by ripening till they have been kept about four months.

A telegraph message passing through the hands of an operator lately, addressed to "A. Gillespie, Clerk, Steamer Magnolia," was ungraciously written off as follows: A. Gilles Pie Clerk, Steamer Magnolia."

A Talking Canary.

FROM THE LONDON "ONCE A WEEK."

I had heard from time to time during the winter of a very wonderful canary hird in the possession of Herrin Professor T.

Berlin, historical painter. The accounts seemed to me contradictory and abourd, and being of a testy disposition and apt to snap at tales without foundation, I formed the exemptional resolution of inspirity in the exceptional resolution of inquiring into this one; so without further ceremony than that of a calling card, I set out to invade the privacy of the Herrin Professor, in order to convince myself of the humbug. or—the world of a wonder.

On being admitted, I was ushered into an apartment which led into a ascend into row.

apartment which led into a second inner one, the door of which stood open. I was received politely by the lady of the heuse, who seemed somewhat astonished on hearing of my self-made mission to her house mingled with words of apology and introduction. While speaking I heard a voice coming from the inner apartment just mentioned. The with words of apology and introduction. While speaking I heard a voice coming from the inner apartment just mentioned. The Frau Professor turned her head and answered to the voice, "Maetzekin, mein liebe" Maetzekin!" with an air of pleased delight, and then to me "that is the little won-ler, if you will have it so." Again the voice issued from the apartment, a voice which in pitch and quality I judged to be that of a child of from two to three years old. I was about to make some polite speech about her family as I thought myself bound to do, when the Frau Professor led the way into the inner room, saying, "Now come and see Maetzchen and judge for yourself." I felt disposed to deprecate my being thought a judge of babies, but I had no time, for there I was in the middle of the room, and not a child or any vestige of one to be seen. All quiet and orderly as might be the sanctum of an aged virgin. But under the sofa! It is just possible the voice proceeded from thence. The Professorin turned her back for an instant, and a rapid and scarching glance convinced me that no tumbel netticoats or stant, and a rapid and searching glance con-vinced me that no tumbled petticoats or scarlet shy face was hidden beneath. Where then did the voice proceed from? And who was Maetzchen? I was not kept long in suspense as to his personality, for Frau Prosuspense as to his personality, for Frau Professor T——, bringing a bird-carge that was standing on her work-table at the window and placing it beside me on the centre-table, introduced its little inmate as "mein Maetzekin." Now a light dawned on me—could it indeed be?—but all speculation was suddenly cut short and all doubt speedily dispelled, for the tiny yellow throat quivered, the beak opened, and the bird spoke—spoke as distinctly as I or any naturally articulate individual can. The words and the tones were the same as I had heard from the outer apartment believing them to proceed from a apartment believing them to proceed from a child of some three years old.

I stood for one half-hour in speechless astonishment listening to this diminutive chatter-box, who seemed to take a true de-light in showing off before me every art of light in showing off before me every art of which he was possessed. His stock of words was few, but he varied the tone and the order in which they were uttered, intermingling them likewise with song. Canaries, like Jews, being of all nations, and this being a German canary, he spoke German as follows: "Wo bist du, mein liebes Maetzekin, mein liebes, liebes Maetzekin, wo bist du," It almost same an insult to modern du?" It almost seems an insult to modern schooling to translate those words; Mats, Maetzchen, Maetzekin is the only one that might require some explanation. It is not a proper name, but a common term given to cage-birds, especially to the canary, being equivalent to our dickey. Maetzekin is a playful and endearing variation of a term that is already with its "chen" added to the Matz, soft and coaxing. It is, as we should say, Dickiekins. Mactzchen's whole phrase then is, Where art thou, dear Dickiekins, my dear, dear Dickiekins, where art thou? Mactzchein, with its sharp and hard consonants, is a marvellously hard word to articulate. How Mactzchen manages it is not corrected to the form of the trie a cost of Shile. very clear to me, for the tz is a sort of Shib-boleth by which to discover many an other-wise very articulate foreign tongue. The little marvel does not speak quite pure high German. It treats the st in bist a little thick and inclining to the plattdeutsch. This makes it sound at once very comical and very pretty, and less like a bit of ma-chine work; though, had I been told it was chine work; though, had I been told it was a bit of ingenious machinery, it seems I should have admired the wonders of it and given to the powers of man an easier cre-dence—for what have his ingenuity and dili-gence not accomplished by means of wheels and screws?—than I felt I could to this wonder of nature.

Maetzchen, making a pause in his discourse and daintily refreshing himself with seed and water and rice biscuit, I recovered ceeded to put s the following few and simple facts of Maetzchen's life

two years old, and has been able to use his tongue for half that time. He came into the possession of his present mistress almost out of the shell, and, it is true, from a private nest. Mactzehen did not sing a note, though both of the right age and sex, but fell into the very quiet ways of a biddless home. His cage was placed from the first on the Frau Professor's work-table, which stood in the window. On the long afterwoons, which the early German nner leaves, the lady used regularly to sit there with her seam, as I believe the expres-sion is, and being neither of the singing or whistling order, she diverted herself and Maetzchen by addressing him, by the hour I Maetzchen by addressing him, by the hour I may say, the above words of endearment—we bist du, mein liebes Maetzchen, or Maetzekin. And so on, ringing changes on the word as one would to a child. Maetzchen did not seem to know it was his birthright to sing, and those words being the only sounds that fell on his ear, and he a bird of considerable talent, he picked them up, and one day threw the whole house into state of consternation by breaking forth a state of consternation by breaking forth into speech. He had uttered tones before, and his call had and has quite a peculiar timbre and turn; but his first full and distinct utterance seems to have been one day in the absence of his mistress. A seamstress had taken her place, and poor Maetzchen, missing his daily companion, spoke. The girl, thinking the bird was possessed, rushed in terror out of the room, and told how the little creature had addressed her. She was laughed at naturally, but by-and-by they all crept in and all heard him. Since then may a maturally, but by and by they all crept in and all heard him. Since then Mactzchen has not ceased to use his tongue, and that remained his only accomplishment till, his mistress going to the country, gave him in charge to a friend who had a capital singer. Marked with a suppose on the firm of the property of th mactzchen has not caused to use his tongue, Mactzchen has not caused to use his tongue, and that remained his only accomplishment iii his mistres going to the country, gave him in charge to a friend who had a capical singer: Mactzchen, ever ready to learn,
singer: Mactzchen, ever ready to learn, plaked up a fine note. His present habit is to repeat his words, finishing them off in a rapid and repeated utterance of the bist du,

The Howen Uteroscope,
daughter.

On the st instant, first is off, on the grin sand the dates and the dates they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

On the st instant, first is off, on the grin sand the dates and they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

On the st instant, first is off, on the grin sand the dates and they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope, date the most fivenes, sand of the sand they dated by the probable suicide of the guess. Said her husband, with some imsuntly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
daughter.

On the st instant, first is off, on the grin sand they dated by the sand they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
daughter.

On the st instant, first is off, on the grin sand they dated by the probable suicide of the guess. Said her husband, with some imsuntled permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
day of the country, gave has they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope, Membrang 100 the state of Oct., Nr. Jours Harrass, in his stift year.

On the st instant, first is of the sand they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
Membrang 200 times, man of their dates in the distant dates they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
Membrang 200 times, man of their dates in the distant dates they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope,
Membrang 200 times, man of their dates in the distant dates they can now be quickly and permanently cured.

The Howen Uteroscope, Mattachen, cured this,

birt du, bist du, and then off into his song. He has other words he can say, but he o.d not favor me with them. He is not always equally disposed for conversation, and some who go to hear come away disappointed, and say in consequence it is all humbur. Deof having my own observations confirmed before communicating them to the public, I sent a young ornithologist, one by love more than by profession, to see and hear. And he saw and heard, and afterwards gave me a simple recital. My young friend remarked that Matz modulated his voice, especially when his mistress left the into a long-drawn sentimental ton mein Maetze-kin, mein lie-bes, lie-bes, Maet-

Long life to Mactschen! I hope the same law of nature that condemns all the good and clever to an early death, will make an exception in favor of him. The fact of his existence is strange and interesting, especially cially to men of science. It has already been mentioned to the ornithological society in Berlin by my young friend, and raised amongst the karned gentlemen a perfect storm of excitement. And with reason, for storm of excitement. And with reason, for it is a fact which suggests speculation of a sort that falls in with many of the ideas of the present day. This unwitting experiment having succeeded it might be worth somebody's while (having an equal command of leisure as the Frau trofessor; to try the same with other birds. For instance, that yattering gamis the sparrow. Were he not so hard to keep in confinement there is scarcely a doubt but that his bold, vigorous, insolent tones might be turned into articulation. I have often heard it said that of all animals an elephant and a canary possessed animals an clephant and a canary possessed the most wits. I am not prepared to discuss the question. I simply ask is this articulation of sound a sign of more wits than the glance of a faithful dog's eye?

Proposed New York, New York, New Jersey, New Jersey,

The Hindoo saint extends ho-pitality alike to friends and enemies. When he cats he shares his food with whatever creature pre-sents itself. He refrains from honey from sents itself. He refrains from honey from reluctance to deprive bees of their nourishment. He will not eat flesh because he shrinks from causing the death of any animal. He avoids lighting a candle at night lest insects should be drawn into the flame; and he filters the water he drinks lest he should incautiously awallow some creature. Hindoos will die rather than taste beef—after which has often been revored on bearl are supposed to be favored by divine beings. They believe every animals have a degree of sacredness to a devout Hindoo. Those that subsist on vegetables are supposed to be favored by divine beings. They believe every animal is endowed with thought and memory, and has some mole of thought and memory, and has some mode of communicating its ideas to its own species. At Surat is a Banian hospital where de-ceased and aged animals are watched with tenderest care. Kindness towards animals tenderest care. Kindness towards animals inculcated in all the sacred books, and everywhere practised as a religious duty, forms a lovely feature in Asiatic religions which Christianity would do well to imitate. True, it is founded on sympathy produced by be-lief in the transmigration of souls. But a friendly relation between men and animals is beautiful and good; and though Chris-tians do not believe the soul of an ancestor tians do not believe the soul of an ancestor may have passed into a horse, they might practise humanity from a higher motive. Tenderness towards the dumb creatures of God would harmonize with the spirit of the religion they profess; and to acquire if they merely need to apply the first and most obvious rule of natural religion: "How should I like to be treated if I were a horse?"—Lydia Maria Child.

How to Tell Discussed Ment.

In view of the fact that there is danger that diseased meat may find its way into the market, it may be stated, as a guide to meat nurchasers, that healthy meat is firm and two-thirds.

Negre suffrage amendments to their State Constitutions were adopted, last Tuesday, in both Iowa and Minnesota.

Financial Panic.—There has been quite the brokers of New York and t has but little odor, and that by no means disagreeable. Diseased meat has a faint and calaverous smell. This is best observed by cutting it and smelling the knife, or pouring a little warm water over it when chopped It loses, also, ten per cent more weight is cooking than when healthy. The diseases engendered by bad meat are chiefly diarrhos and tape-worm. It often creates car-buncles and boils. Care should be taken to have meat most thoroughly cooked, if consumers wish to avoid all possibility of

A SMOOTH-GOING HARROW.—Near the village of M. there lived a farmer who engaged a son of the Emerald Isle to work for him. One morning in the spring Pat was

There is such a thing as having too many children if your memory is poor. The other night Spriggins counted his brood, but sould only make up fourteen. "How is this?" he asked his wife; "I thought there, were fifteen of them at the last census?"
"So there were," she answered, "but one of them died since that," "Indeed," said or assafortida. The law should require all prescriptions to be written plainly, and without above yield. "So there were," she answered, "but one of them died since that." "Indeed!" said Spriggins, meditatively; "why, seems to me I heard of that at the time."

Prescriptions to be written plainly, and without abbreviations. Lifer INSURANCE.—An important decision has just been rendered by the New York the French tribunals. A young girl eleven years of age attempted successively the life of her mother and sister, for the sole pur-pose of drinking their blood. The child has been examined by competent physicians, and proved to be attacked by the strange mania of anthropophagy. Her extreme youth leads the physicians to hope that her cure may be accomplished.

milk .- Josh Billings.

friend into an enemy by advising him to dent. The hare his head freecoed.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

THE ELECTION, -The Presidential election is over, and Grant and Colfax are elected. We give the vote, as near as we have it, (but prebably inaccurately) as follows:— THE PRESIDENCY.

1	FOR G	H	ANT AND	COLPAX.
i Str	stes.		Electors.	Pop. Maj.
Main	0, -		7	28,000
New	Hampshir	a,	75	8,000
Mass	achusetts,		12	70,000
Rhod	ie Island.	-	4	6.000
Conn	ecticut,		6	3,000
Verm	ont		Ti.	20,000
Penn	sylvania,		26	22,000
	Virginia,	*	5	6,000
Ohio,			21	35,000
	na,		13	12,000
	is, -	*	10	50,000
Mich	igan, -		8	25,000
Wisco	msin,		H	20,000
			N	40 000
	aska,	*	.7	4,000
	essee,		10	20,000
Calife	ornia,		75	Doubtful.
Neva	da, -	8	13	1,000
Mismo	uri	-	11	20,000
Kansı			3	5,000
North	Carolina,		9	Doubtful.
Minne	menta,		4	10,000
South	Carolina,		6	8,000
Florie	la, -		3	[By Leg.]
Arkni	isne, -	-	5	Doubtful.
			-
2	5 States,		166
	FOR SE	Y 3	SOUR AN	D BLAIR.
New			33	6,000
	Jersey,	*	7	2,500

Georgia, Louisiana, Idubious 9 States

Virginia, Mississippi and Texas, having 28 lectoral votes, were prohibited from voting by Congress.

litical complexion of the Forty-first Congress is exhibited (probably inaccurately) in the following table:—

State.	Rep.	Dem.	State.	Rep.	Dem.
Alabama,	4	3	Minnesota,	1	1
Arkaneae,	1	2	Missouri,	5	4
California,	18	1	Nebraska,	1	(mass)
Connecticut, *	1100	900	Nevada,	1	2000
Delaware,	-	1	N. Hampshire	1-
Florida,	1		New Jersey,	3	Я
Georgia,		7	New York,	18	18
Illinois,	11	8	North Carolin	s. 3	4
Indiana,	7	4	Ohio, -	13	6
lows.	6		Oregon,	-	1
Капеле,	1	400	Pennsylvania,	16	8
Kentucky,	1	28 1	Rhode Island,	38	1000
Louisiana,		6	South Carolina	1, 4	0.00
Maine,	5	-	Tennessee,	- 18	-
Maryland,	*	5.1	Vermont,	5	160
Massachuretts	. 10		West Virginia	. 21	-
Michigan,	6	1	Wisconsin,	5	1
				-	100

Republican majority, 59.

 Chooses next spring. † Not chosen.

The Scnate will stand as follows:—Reublicans, 57; Democrats, 11; Republican apority 46.

majority 49.

The foregoing list of members of the House of Representatives does not include Connecticut, now represented by one Republican and three Democrats, or New Hampshire, now represented by three Republicans. These two States will elect in the spring.

In the present Congress the vote stands in the House:— Republican, Democrats,	174 59

Republican majority,	122

FINANCIAL PANIC.—There has been quite a panic among the brokers of New York and the other leading cities within a week or so. The following shows the decline of stocks during last w	eek:-

H	ighest.	Lowest.	Decline.
N. Y. Cent.,	130	1174	124 p	er cent.
Erie,	52	381	134	5.6
Hudson Riv.,	142	199	26	6.4
Reading,	101	914	94	4.6
Pittsburg,	93	90	12	6.6
Mich. Sou.,	91	794	119	6.6
St. Paul.	116	62	54	6.6
North West,	934	724	20	6.6
Past Wanna	1104	1054	1.4	6.6

has just been rendered by the New York Court of Appeals between the American Mutual Life Insurance Company and the widow of an insured party. The of the insurance was refused on the that her husband had invalidated h by committing saicide. The company also attempted to prove that the insured man was an atheist or infidel, and therefore that the death was intentional, the deceased not having the fear of God before him; but the The stere can kure for natural laziness, where it is a part of a man's constitushun and byelaws? Only one kure, that is milk a cow on the run, and subsist on the the believe of indisencing the countries that in an action to recover for an insurance upon the life of the deceased, it is incompetent to inquire into his religious faith with a view of indisencing the countries. nch case, death was oc of self-destruction or by an intent of self-destruction or of acci-dent. The Court of Appeals therefore af-firmed the indepent of the lower court by the giving in green for the respondent thus virtually establishing the principle that a life insurance policy is not of necessity invalidated by the probable suicide of the

THE CROPS.-The October report of the Department of Agriculture states that the increase of the wheat harvest is scarcely more than three per cent, over last year. increase of the wheat harvest is scarcely more than three per cent, over lust year. This result has been occasioned by the diminution in the old states of the yield per acre, which neutralizes the increase of the area of production. The oat harvest is light, except in the Western states, is Nebraska the increase being 21 per cent, over last year. The corn crop is reported as having been injured by the wet weather, and later by the frost. The total product will be less than is needed for the country, but will be larger in quantity than it was in will be farger in quantity than it was in 1867, which was a very unfavorable season. Buckwheat is generally deficient in its re-Buckwheat is generally denoted by yielding a learn. Potatoes are reported as yielding a not in itself immediately dangerous, it is the source per cent. in New York and Pennsylvania, of many deadly maladies. Even if it did not tend to many deadly maladies.

-An English fachion paper contains an Beige" newspaper, get- a salary of $10,000 a give renewed vitality to the system. Acting delight-A Parisian statistician computes that the birtas since the creation of the world have been 66,627,843,273,075,221. have been 66,627,843,273,075,221.

—A machine for harvesting corn, by taking the cars from the stalks while standing in the field, was exhibited at the recent State Fair in Illinois. The appearatus is constructed to strip two rows at once. The stalks are taken between projecting metal-faced fingers, and as the machine advances the butt of the ear is brought in construction where with a best sidely project. vances the butt of the ear is brought in con-tact with a short sickle, playing at the rear of the fingers, cutting it off, while the stalk passes under the machine without being pulled up; the ears are received into a large hopper at the rear of the machine, and dis-charged when it is full.

—CALIPORNIA EARTHQUAKES.—Another severe carthquake lasting twelve accordesevere earthquake, lasting twelve seconds, occurred at San Francisco on Thursday night, (the 5th.) but no damage resulted. There have been slight shocks at San Francisco nearly every day since Oct. 21.

—The recent carthquakes in South America and California were not accompanied with volcanic eruptions. This fact has given rise to the surmise that these countries may expect a recurrence of these shocks. Here-tofore, in countries where volcances are to be found, the earthquake precedes the eruption, and as soon as the subterranean com motions are relieved through the oraters, the shocks cease. The volcances appear to be escape pipes, and when these vents are choked, the internal forces endeavor to break out in other spots.

An amorous swain wrote to his friend: "Dear Harry—You asked me what kind of a game I was playing with Jack Graham for Clarissa's hand. I have to say, in reply, it is a game of double or quits, and the result is I double and he quits." Earthquakes were of frequent occurrence in New England during the first century after its settlement by the Puritans.

There is but one nobleman with a title in Norway. Years ago all titles were abolished. That is, the possessors of them could keep them, but their children could not inherit them; so the old generation is now all dead but one.

$30° A. G. Tuttle, of Baraboo, Wisconsin, has shipped this fall from his parameter.  A. G. Tuttle, of Baraboo, Wisconsin, has shipped this fall from his nursery, of his own trees, 8,000, and 20,000 in all. He harvested from his own vineyard 4,000 pounds of grapes, and sold them at Baraboo and Kilbourn at 15 cents per pound.

 Physiologists now say that to be ill-natured is to be sick, and to be sick is to be sickly as the sick is to be sickly as the sick gray overcoat.

27 Gen. Sheridan, it is said, reports that he has seen a herd of buffalo ninety miles in length and twenty-five miles in width, and estimates the number it contained at Nothing so much destroys our peace of mind as to hear another express an intention to give us a piece of his.

THE MARKETS.

FLOUR-About 12,000 bbls sold at $5,75@7 for superfine; $7@8 for extra; $7,25@8,25 for Northwest family, the latter rate for Minnesota; $8,50@, 10,50 for Penna extra family; $9,50@10,75 for Obio extra family, and $11@15 $9 bbl for fancy brands, according to quality. $60 bbls of they Flour sold at $860,8,25 $9 bbl.

condition.

PROVISIONS—The market continues dult; sales of these Fork at $200.20.00. Green Ments vales of pickled Hams at 150,17c, and Shoulders at 115c. Lard; sales of 500 bils and 1cs Western at 170,175c. for steam and kettle reduced. Butter, sales of solid

No. 18 B for parid.
SEEDS Cloverseed sold at $70,7,50, according to

The supply of Beef Cattle during the past werk amounted to about 200 head. The prime remired from $1,000 head. The prime remired from $1,000 head. Sheep-12,000 head were disposed of st from $1,000 head were disposed of st from $1,000 head. Sheep-12,000 head were disposed of to 11,20 $1,000 head. Sheep-12,000 head were disposed of the control of the Manageric Healing Institute and Conservatory of Spiritual Science, No. 17 Great Junes street, New York. All diseases, including Career and Consumption by a responsible name. ensioned tion, cured. Consultations on all subjects. octiling

The heat hotels use BURNETT's PLAYORING Ex-

You may be Too Late.

Be warned in time. Discusses like Indigention and Dyspepsia are not to be triffed with. There is such a thing as being too late in these matters. Inflammation, or Scirrius Cancer or some other dangerous disease may cashe, when all restoratives, no matter how potent, would be ineffectual. Do not delay then-When the symptoms of Dyspepsia are first experienced resert at once to the great restorative medicine, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, and you will be safe.

per cent, in New York and Pennsylvania, and 20 per cent, in Binois. The cotton crop, it is stated, will be less than last year by 15 greater evil, the mental and physical misery is proto 20 per cent., owing to the depredations of the army worm, and to the heavy rains in the Southwest. -A plantation in Mississippi, which cost $60,000 ton years ago, was sold lately for linear own, where it is found in nearly every house. hold. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are universally conceded to be the sovereign remedy for advertisement of "elegant bridal presents this annoying disease, as they act directly upon the to let."

-The editor of the "Independence digestive organs, correct and tone the stomach, and -The editor of the "Independence digestive organs, correct and tone the stomach, and -The editor of the eviter. Acting delightfully upon the nerves and soothing the brain, renders them efficacious as a mental medicine, as well as a genial stomachic. If taken as a preventive, they will be found particularly well suited to the diseases arising from the unhealthy season of autumn, and their use will prevent the creeping, unpleasant sensation often complained of when the chills are stealing slowly upon the patient.

> R. R. H.-RADWAY'S READY RELEEF.-To be used on all occasions of pain or sudden sickness. Immediate relief and consequent cure for the all-ments and diseases prescribed, is what the RELIEF guarantees, to perform. Its motto is plain and sys-tematic: It will surely cure! There is no other remedy, no other Linimant, no kind of Pain-kil-LEB, that will check pain so suddenly and so satisfactorily as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF. It has been thoroughly tested in the workshop and in the field, in the counting-room and at the forge, among civi-lians and soldiers, in the parlor and in the hospital, throughout all the varied climes of the earth, and one general verdict has come home: "The moment Radiscay's Ready Relief is applied externally, or taken inwardly according to directions, rain, from schattere cause, ceases to exist!" Use no other kind for Sprains, or Burns, or Scalds, or Cuts, CRAMPS, BRUISES, OF STRAINS, It is excellent for CHILBLAINS, MOSQUITO BITES, also STINGS OF POLsonous Insects. It is unparalleled for Sun Strokes, REUX, INFLARMATION OF THE STOMACH, BOWRLS, KINNETS, &c. Good for almost everything. No family should be without it. Follow directions and a speedy cure will be effected. Sold by Druggists. Price 50 cents per bottle.

Upham's Depliatory Powder

Removes superfluous hair from any part of the body in five minutes, without injury to the skin. Sent by

Upham's Asthma Cure

res the most violent paroxysms in Ave minutes, and effects a speedy cure. Price $9 by mail,

The Japanese Hair Stain

Colors the whiskers and bair a beautiful black or Colors the whiterest and built is consists of only one preparation. It consists of only one preparation. To cts. by mail. Address S. C. UPHAM, 115 South Seventh street, Philadelphia. Circulars sent free. Sold by all Druggists.

HUNT'S COURT TOILET POWDER IS Suprelor to any other for whitening the skin. It does not rub off or injure the complexion. No lady should be without this justly celebrated requisite for the toilet. The inful.

Broadway is perambulated by a loomer with high-colored pantaloons and a funer, 41 South Eighth 8t., Philadelphia. sep26-ty Hunt's Bloom of Roses.

A delicate color for the cheeks or lips, does not wash off, and warranted not to injure the skin, can only be removed with vinegar, and cannot be detected with a microscope. It remains permanent for years, and can in no manner be discovered from the natural flush of health, and excites universal admirati Price $1. Sent by mail for $1.18. T. W. Evans, Per fumer, 41 South Eighth St., Philadelphia. sep36-ly

Family and Totlet Scape. The very best, Scap Powder. The great labor-saving compound. Concentrated Potash. The ready scapmaker. Saleratus, warranted pure and unadulterated.

Lion Cuffee, guaranteed pure, and in flavor unsur and at the manufactory, Nos. 64, 68, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70,

MARRIAGES.

72 and 74 Washington street, add 4 street, New York. B. T. BARRITT.

Marriage notices must always be accompanied by a responsible name.

On the 23d of Oct., by the Rev. J. Spencer Kennard, William H. Thirres to Exclus. R. Serra, daugiter of Wm. H. Smith, Esq., both of this city. On the 23h of Oct., by the Rev. W. C. Hobinson, Mr. J. Hanny Yearniar to Miss Assa M. Spell. On the 23h of Oct., by the Rev. J. H. Alday, Mr. Brutano. B. Youso to Miss Lider. S. Cockenill, both of the city. pualty.

TALLOW Sales of City rendered at 125 c g b.

PHILADELPHIA CATTLE MARKETS.

TALLOW Sales of City rendered at 125 c g b.

Mr. ALEXANDER FREER to Miss ELIZABETH B.

ALEXANDER FREER to Miss ELIZABETH B.

ALEXANDER FREER to Miss Many A. B. WHISSA, both of this city.

BEATHS.

Hottoway's Converse Ashina and Quiney, frightful diseases (scalaims the rapter. We admit they were frightful thirty years ago; but flowing they were frightful thirty years ago; but flowing to the followsy's non-they can now be quically and permanently cuted it never falls.

Ward Convils agod of years. On the 1st instant, Manus flowing sum of James and Mary A. Nicholl, in his fifth year, in the 1st instant, Manus ker contains the restriction of th

200

LITTLE POXES.

BY MRS. MARY CRAM

Little foxes, spoiling Trusted to my tending
By the One Divine—
Little foxes, wherefore Have ye entrance found To the vine so precious Growing in my ground?

Have ye leaped the fences? Have ye leaped the fences:

Have ye elimbed the wail?

Were there tiny openings?

Ye are very small—

And ye can creep slyly

Through a tiny space;

But I thought I closed up Every open place.

And I watch by daytime, And I watch by night, For the vine you're spot Is my heart's delight! I have kept the earth-worm From its precious root; I have trimmed its branches, But they bear no fruit.

For the little foxes Have assailed the vine Trusted to my tending
By the One Divine;
And though I've been faithful
Since its birth-day morn, They were in the garden When the babe was born.

For they are the failings That I would not se When they were my failings, When they dwelt in me; Little faults unheeded That I now despise For my baby took them With my hair and eyes

And I chide her often, For I know I must, But I do it always Bowed down to the dust, With a face all crimsoned With a burning blush, nd an inward whisper. That I cannot hush.

And sometimes it seemeth Like the Voice of God, And it says, " Poor coward, Using now the rod On a child's frail body Till I hear it moan, And see its acft flesh quiver, For a sin thine own

Oh, my Father, pity, Pity and forgive:-Slay the little foxes I allowed to live, Till they left the larger
For the smaller vine,
Till they touched the dear life,
Dearer far than mine.

school, and Kitty and little Peter were off on one of those tireless excursions children take over new territory. Every thing looked so neat and cleanly about the place that Rosie was at length content to leave it alone and get out her basket of work beside the window nearest the road, so that she might catch the first glimpse of her expected visitor. It was homely needlework, consisting for the most part of garments to be patched and stockings to be healed, but Rosie was so essentially tidy that nothing about her secuned coarse or out of place.

The mother stod Miss McEwing had not transfixed them on its threshold.

"Then "Then couragingly, "den't let me shut out the sight of your mother; come and tell me how you like the country. What pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, like the country. What pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he couragingly, "den't let me shut out the sight of your mother; come and tell me how you like the country. What pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he couragingly is pretty lady you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country. What pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country." The pretty lady save them to me, and all me how you like the country. What pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well, I he country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"Well with the country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"The mother; to me shut out the your like the country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"The mother; to me shut out the your like the country." The pretty flowers are those you have in your hand?

"The mother; to me shut out the your hand?

"The mother; to me shut out the your hand?

"The mother; to me shut out the tea and tell me what you've been thinking about. I left the coach at the foot of the about. I left the coach at the foot of the ridge and walked up to get a closer view of that descrited house on the other side of the creek. What a wonderful old place it is, Rosie, all guarded by ghostly poplars."

"It's not impty, ma'am," said Rosie, yielding her work as a matter of course, and raising the broad leaf of the old mahogany table before spreading the white cloth for her honored guest.

this little corner here, it was supposed that house was unoccupied and not likely to be lived in till its owner, a child, became of the place on the other side of the ridge and this little corner here, it was supposed that house was unoccupied and not likely to be lived in till its owner, a child, became of age."

Rosic had laid a snowy cloth on the table and placed a china cup and saucer with a small place of home-made buns beside them. She now proceeded to draw the tea, and stepping into the little kitchen to do so, Mass McEwing rose, and work in hand, walked out on the porch and looked over in the direction Rosic had indicated as the position of the inhabited L of the descrited looking house. She could only catch sight of the outline and one small window peeping through the poplar beaghs, but the desolate main dwelling stood out in bold relief from the clearing on the rise where it was situated, and all its glaring eyes of windows stared upon her blankly. The tea was drawing, and Rosic joined her to point out the improvements John designed in the garden, and the site of the cow shed Terry was going to build.

Traming, it's not my habit, and I'll soon be over this quare faling I have, it's a sort ov heaviness, ma'am, I shouldn't wonder if it would go off as it came like a flash ov fever."

The lady raised her head and shook off her thoughtfulness with a gay laugh.

"I'll explain the whole to you, Rosic," The iday raised her head and shook off her thoughtfulness with a gay laugh.

"I'll explain the whole to you, Rosic," The iday raised her head and shook off her thoughtfulness, and never saw a dirty, smoky city till after you were married, as you have told me. There's a touch of unconscious poetry in every heart and a good deal of it in yours that the sight of the spreading fields and meadow larks awaken. Every one is sad in remembering, and this is like a ghost of your childhood come back again. It has oppressed you without showing you its cause, and as for the white figure, the moonlight among the vines out there could produce that."

"But ye see, miss," said Rosic respect-fully the produce that the sight of the spreading fields and the

I'm trimbing like whiniver I think ov it.

It's bright day now, and sich things niver are seen except at night, yet what the children tell me puts my heart to bating, and I'm like to faint wid dread ov something, I lou't know what."

Poor Rosie trembled as she spoke and set lown the pot she had lifted to fill her guest's cup. "This is a strange story, Rosie, and all table before spreading the white cloth for her honored guest.

"Not empty?" inquired the lady; "that's odd, since the windows are all uncurtained and the rooms bare."

"That's on the side near the road," explained Rosie, "but ye must know there's a kind or L that runs out where the trees are thickest, and it's there the people live that the place belongs to."

"Who can they be?" said Miss McEwing thoughtfully. "When my brother bought the place on the other side of the ridge and this little corner here, it was supposed that this little corner here, it was supposed that the lady; "that's of one who communes with her own heart. Rosie began to fidget a little under this secreting and after biting her lip awhile interrupted the reverie by saying earnestly, "Please, miss, don't think me foolish or draming, it's not my habit, and I'll soon be over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over this quare faling I have, it's a sort over the sort of the sort of the sum of the sort of the s drawing, and Rosie joined her to point out the improvements John designed in the garden, and the site of the cow shed Terry was going to build.

"Do you like it, really and truly?" asked Miss McEwing abruptly, and turning to watch the expression with which Rosie should answer her.

"How could I help liking it, ma'am? Whin you think of the alley I left and look about you here on the pleasant fields, you must know my failures better nor I can tell its like in the mids ov little Kitty and Pether, nor could the moon show thim a pretty lady gathering those as well as anywhere else, it is not a desolate spot quite uninhabited except by you; there are country houses I know beyond the Ridge," "Do you like it, really and truly?" asked Miss McEwing abruptly, and turning to watch the expression with which Rosie should answer her.
"How could I help liking it, ma'am?
Whin you think of the alley I left and look about you here on the pleasant fields, you must know my falings better nor I can tell them."
"Of coorse there are," cried Rosie, with a strong effort at conviction, and she rose

"Mayor it's a mane and sellish faling, and if'I was higher born or better bred I mighth't think as I do, but now I'm just striving to make the boys and girls worthy of John as his brothers and sisters, and if I can lave thim in his care, knowing that they're fit

Miss McEwing beat the floor softly with her foot, her face was rather pale, and her mouth contracted painfully two or three times, but no word or look expressed sym-pathy with her humble friend's story.

"So Mary Ann is to be a singer," she said pleasantly, as if there had been no feeling on either side.

Rosie drew a long breath, and fell back into her own components before realizing

"Yes, ma'am, wid heaven's blissing and good health she'll begin in a month or two the gintleman said, but ye see it's a saycret, for I've niver told even John yet. He's a Frinchman, I suppose, though I'm sure I don't know, except that it's there all foreigners seen to me to come from and he here. ers seem to me to come from, and he has two little girls wid no mother to look after thim. He's boarding and sinding them to a big school where they are larned all kinds big school where they are larned all kinds or wonderful things. So whin I heard that, as I did from the girl that opened the door to me, I made bold to propose to him that I'd take the washing and minding of their clothes, and kape the little craytures tidy, if he'd do what he could to give Mary Ann a start wid the tunes. For a while I couldn't get it bate intil his understanding, but he's aimsible or it now, and will begin whin I get. set to date into this understanding, but he's sinsible ov it now, and will begin whin I get her things ready to go in twice a week, and break the bargain to Terry." "You've not told him yet?" Rosie shook her head. "Ye see I don't trouble him wid these little things except to ask his advice whin little things except to ask his advice whin everything's settled. Whin a man has his work to look to, miss, it would be foolish in a woman to disturb him about trifles." Miss McEwing assented, and smiled as she a little surprised at betrack much, she asked quietly.

"Then why did you say Mary Ann had learning enough for her station in life without further study?"

Rosie leaghed and blushed.

"Och new, did I say so, thin?" said she.

"Well, I have found out that you can do more if you work quiet like, and widout crying out yer intintions, so I've jist fallent into that way I suppose."

Her face flushed painfully as she ceased speaking, and she added after a moment's pause.

"You see, miss, I jist said the tare in the boy to hip to lade him up to my own door which was handy, and we set him in a chair and gev him a drink, before he revived and got his wits about him again. He vived and got his wits about him spain. He vived and got his wits about him again. He vived and wide the corner before—but it and the young man looked at him he with the carning and the young man looked at him he which was a number of the poung man looked at him he with the corner before—but it and the young man looked at him he with the young man looked at him he which w and picked berries with us till she fired away so essentially tidy that nothing away."

The mother stood silent in astonishment. Kitty corroborated—"Yes, ma'am, she did, and she sat by the open window, whose casement was wreathed with summer vines, her own fresh, brown-eyed face and-string. "Wat do they mean, Rosie" asked Miss flev unread as she piled her needle, and seemed as she y unravolling some subject in her mind as she passed, that a tall, handsome lady entered shering ashe may with a light step, stood still in the dearway with a light step, stood still in the dearway with a smile on her observant face, waiting for recognition. Rose looked up and uttered a correct of the mode of her departure, that sudden confusion on a second glance at her visitor.

In a picked berries with us till she lied away."

The mother stood silent in astonishment. Kitty corroborated—"Yes, ma'am, she did, casement was wreathed with summer vines, het does and pretty, too."

What do they mean, Rosie's asked Miss McEwing, with interest. "What hady have you here?" what had phase to get in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled her needle, and seemed as subject in her mind as she piled house it for lad the way not time seemed the right time till now."

The lady put down her sering and looked some about myself and childer with the way not time seemed the right time till now."

The lady put down her sering and looked stood as the streads in the seemed a well-spoken man, and paid the boy way not time seemed the right time till now."

The lady put down her sering and looked stood as the sumpl give a raison for it. He was civil spoken, This last discovery jist turned my head. I "Like a pretty lady," said Kitty, decidedly; "and she had nice, long kair, as white as Peter's."

Rosie sat down and looked steadily at the homely carpet at her feet for a few minutes. At length she said; "Go into the kitchen a bit, children, dear, but don't go beyant the back porch." So, thrusting a bun into the hand of each, she dismissed them and pre-

Great big tears sprang into the full brown eyes and rolled down the flushed cheeks as she spoke.

"Maybe it's a mane and selfish faling, and if' I was higher born or better bred I mightn't think as I do, but now I'm just striving to make the boys and girls worthy of John as his brothers and sisters, and if I can lave thim in his care, knowing that they're fit for it, and will value it. T'll count my work done and the battle I'm fighting gained."

Miss McEwing beat the floor softly with her foot, her face was rather pale, and her back to Ireland begging his way if he could. That wasn't the worst ov our troubles, for as you know we hadn't time to think what to do next when the place closed up where I got me work and I was thrown idle. I didn't tell Terry, poor fellow, for his heart was weighty enough widout another load, and I had the gold piece the gentleman left between was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sween was and sarvation and I dight't despite the sarvation and I between us and starvation, an' I didn't despair. I was mending up something for the childer one night, after Terry had gone to bed wid a heavy heart—for I always felt we would get something to do if we tried hard, and I had best use this idle time for the little ones.

"It was cold enough, for I had claned "It was cold enough, for I had claned out the stove and laid the fire for the morn-out the stove and laid the fire for the mornout the stove and laid the fire for the morning; the children were warmly covered in bed, and I had my cloak and an old shawl over my own shoulders, whin a rap came to the door. I jumped wid fear, for my mind had been far away, and I was thinking over the nights we young folks used to have round the bright peat fire at home, spinning and cracking jokes. Before I could get up, another rap followed, and a third sounded before I opened the door.

"There stood a man wid a heavy cloak around him and a large bundle under it. He had a cap on wid fursides drawn down over his face, and he spoke hoarsely as if to mislead, me, but I knowed well enough it was lead me, but I knowed well enough it was the same man I had lifted in the street and that had left us the gold piece whin he wint away. "Good woman, be said, 'I've a child

"Good woman,' he said, 'I've a child here overcome by the cold, and I want your aid in rousing. Where's your fire?"
'''It's gone down, sir,' says I, 'but I'll have it up in a minute.' And I flew to and struck a match to the shavings so that a blaze followed my words. The man looked about him for somewhere to put the child that he hadn't uncovered yet. There was but a table and a few chairs in the room; our bed stood in a little back place wid a curtain before it.

Single the little feature of the larger of the smaller case.

The world I shelp liking it, means the feature of the main case of the main case of the larger of the smaller case.

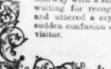

On, my failer, hear me, have not patient of the main case of the larger of the smaller case.

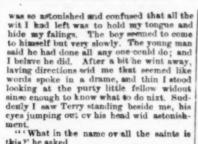

Make ber all closes:

The world I shelp liking it, means the larger of the larg

"It must have been a heavy blow that " Of course it could, says I. See what you can do to hilp the darling; his father's away after his distracted mamma.'

"You see, miss, I jist said this at a venture; for if some people think there's any mystery going, they're that curious they can do nothing but stand and glower; and I wanted the young man to work and not ask wanted the young man to work and not ask questions that I couldn't answer till I could get my wits about me, and see what would come ov it all. Well, I could find no fault wid him, for he did everything that could be expected and more too. While he was gone off to his place after something he naded, my eye caught sight ov a little paper rolled round something on the table. It was two gold pieces, each ten dollars; and on the paper was written 'Kape this child and your own counsil, and this will be paid you every mouth.' I'll show it to you, Miss McEwing. I have it safe, wid the clothes he had on him that night. Though this?' he asked

"I tild him the whole thing as it hap-poned, and showed him the paper. It so-bered him in a moment, and his wits were better than mine.

"'Kape him,' says he, 'we have no choice now but this or starving; the money will buy us what we nade to eat any way; and who knows what luck he'll bring us some time. I've read ov the like, though I niver saw it before.'

"'Well miss I truck my husband's advice.

some time. I've read ov the like, though I niver saw it before.'

""Well, miss, I tuck my husband's advice, and told the spothecary that the child was to stay widus till he was well, and he niver said a word about it, excipt asking us a small bill which we were glad to pay out ov the two gold pieces. He was a young Garman, and I niver know'd half he did say, which was but little any way. The peor boy, our own dear John, came slowly round, and for weeks seemed stupid like, but when a year was come and gone, and we had moved to this city—through the advice ov the strange man who wrote us two letters in the first year, and sint us the money regular—he began to pick up, and look and play like other children."

"How old was he then?" asked Miss Mc-other children.'"

"How old was he then?" asked Miss McEwing, in a voice of deep interest.
"It was jist the same year we came over, and I always tuck him to be between five and six, though I had no way ov knowin for

He must remember something of his early life, then? "Nothing that was any satisfaction to me.

You see, miss, I couldn't help him to recall anything, and I've jist come to the belate that half the wonderful mimory ov children is picked up from what they hear happened, and they lave to fancy they reminiber it all.
It may have been the blow he had, to be sure-fer you see gives it had a stupefying It may have been the blow he had, to be sure—for you see, miss, it had a stupefying effect on him for awhile, or it may have been that he was afraid to speak, for he was that timid the first year that he would cower down into a corner if you looked share at him—but he niver named say one but 'Jane,' and her only by chance."

"What kind of letters did the man write, Rosic? Did they give you any clue to his

"What kind of letters did the man write, Rosie? Did they give you any clue to his connection with the bey?"

"PB show thim to ye this minute—they are nothing but directions about the money, or advice to lave New York, but maybe you, that are a larned lady, can see more in thim nor such as us could make out."

So saying she rose, and went towards the door of the inner room, while her listemer rooms and thoughtfully silent, and followed niver could bear to think ov our dear lad being the son ov sich a could hearted villain."

She beaked besechingly at the lady, as if to implore her sympathy with this view of the case, and adding:
"But I'll not keep you waiting longer than I can help; it's in an old box I brought from home with me, at the bottom of a seachest we bought in Liverpool, before we came over, and I'll away and search it out."
She closed the door after her, and Miss McEwing sat alone so fully wrapt in her own cognitations that she never raised her own cogitations that she never raised her own cognations that sale never raised her eyes or moved, till she became conscious by degrees that something was moving be-side her, and slowly brought back her thoughts to the little room and what it con-

d. beginning to speak of John's story, Rosic, with characteristic caution, had close ed the hall-door, and the viney curtains on the windows made the light imperfect and full of dancing shadows from the stirring of the leaves. Hervisitor raised hereyes inquiringly, looked in uncertain fear, and drew back convulsively, as if unable to take in or doubting what they disclosed to her—then a horror, too terrible for words, wrought upon herror, too terrible for words, wrought upon her features, her lips opened wide in the effort to shrick out her terror, but the petrified sound only gurgled in her throat, and she fell back in the chair from which she streve in vain to rise, a figure of stone, life and blood frozen in her, and a nameless horror painted in her still open eyes.

A little thing to cause such dread—the "Do not murmur against Providence, senor. These men have fallen, it is true;

A little thing to cause such dread—the figure of a girl in white, with long, fair hair, and great wandering violet eyes, that flit-ted noiselessly away, as she had come out into the sunshine, down the path by the close thick-growing bushes, and was lost to (TO BE CONTINUED.)

"LOVE, HONOR, AND OBEY."

Promise to love !- Why, woman thinks To love a privilege, not a task thou wilt truly take my heart And keep it, this is all I ask.

Honor thee !- Yes, if thou wilt live A life of truth and purity; When I have seen thy worthiness, I cannot choose but honor thee.

Obey !-When I have fully learned

Each want and wish to understand, I'll learn the wisdom to obey, If thou hast wisdom to command.

So if I fail to live with thee In duty, love, and lowliness, 'Tis Nature's fault, not thine, or both; The greater must control the less.

said Plato, "and I will worship him as a god." Webster would have suited him, particularly in his old definition of a boil, as a scribed subcutaneous inflammation, characterized by a pointed, pustular tumor, and suppurating with a central core; a per-Ouring Payson's last illness, a friend into his room, remarked familiarly, "Well, I'm sorry to see you lying here on one your back." "Do you know what God puts us on our backs for?" said Dr. P., smilingly.

"No," was the answer. "In order that we are nothing but directions about the money, or advice to lave New York, but may be you, that are a larned lady, can see more in thism nor such as us could make out."

THE INTRODUCTION

COUNT DE MELGOSA.

The Spaniards remained on the defensive for some time longer; they could not be-lieve in their marvellous deliverance, and lieve in their marvellous deliverance, and expected the Red Skins to return at every moment and attack them again. The entire night, however, passed without the deep silence of the desert being disturbed otherwise than by the ferecious howling of the jaguars, and the snapping bark of the coyotes, which were proceeding in packs to the watering places. At sunrise they perceived that the canon was entirely deserted, and that their savage enemies had given up all attempt to carry their encampment by storm. After returning thanks to heaven for the unexpected help sent them in their distress, they busily set to work burying the dead, in order that they might be able to start as soon as possible.

So saying she rose, and went towards the door of the inner rosm, while her listemer remained thoughtfully silent, and followed her with her eyes.

As she opened it, the paused with the handle in her hand, to-say earnestly and emphatically:

"But, as true as I bepe to be saved, that man was niver my Join's father; and I hope, miss, you'll be as sure ovit as I am, whin ye read the letters, for some how I niver could bear to think ov our dear lad being the son ov sich a could hearted villain."

She booked beseechingly at the lady, as if to implore her sympathy with this view of the case, and adding:

being profaned by wild beasts, the hunters hastly took their morning meal, saddled their horses, and set out again, saddlend by the mournful incident which had interrupted their journey so painfully. All smiled around them. The day announced itself under magnificent auspices, the birds saluted with their merry songs the apparition of the day their merry songs the apparition of the day star, the leaves glistened with dew, a thick mist rose from the ground, a perfumed breeze rustled the branches. In a word, all breathed calm joy and pure happiness in this desert, which, but a few hours previously, had been witness of a horrid scene of carnage. As on the previous day the count and the adventurer rode side by side, absorbed in gloomy thoughts, and looking round them absently and carelessly. At length the Canadian drow himself up, shook his head several times as if to disaniss a troublesome thought, and turning to the count said, as

"That is true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help pitying the fate of devoted servants, whose death I indirectly caused."
"It was a glorious fight, vigorously carried on upon both sides. Still it was time for our discountered.

for our liberators to arrive. Had they not, it is more than probable that we should now be also lying lifeless on the ground. But," he added, after a moment's reflection. "why did our saviors go of in that way? I fancy they might have joined us, if not to receive our congratulations and thanks, at least to inquire into our state."
"What good would that do? The Queen of the Savannah heard our muskets, that was sufficient to prove to her that we were still alive and able to fight."

"That is possible," the Canadian continued thoughtfully; "but however great may be the obligation I have contracted towards the extraordinary woman you call by that name, I shall not be satisfied till I shall have been close to her."

have been close to her."
"Why so? With what have you to reproach her? Why obstinately try to disturb the secrets of a person who must be an et of indifference to you

"You are mistaken on that head, senor. This woman, this strange being, has already interfered twice in my affairs at a very short interval of time. A man like myself, senor, does not contract serious obligations, unless he knows that he will be able some day to repay to the person who forces such protection upon him."

The count burst into a laugh.
"Caballero, caballero," he said, "y punctilious, and difficult to satisfy. one in your place would readily put up with the affront, and not be at all anxious to know to whom he owes so great an obliga-

"Everybody, senor, looks at matters from

THE QUEEN OF THE SAVANAH.

It is own point of sight; for my part I repeat that the way in which the woman to whom we are alluding has twice interfered in my affairs has excited in me, I will not say a curiosity, but such a lively interest, that I settle him; but when a thing is doubtful, swear to you I mean to learn something about her at all risks so soon as I am at lively interest, when a thing is doubtful, it is always as well to take one's precautions."

"What are you shout?"

about her at all risks to some divery again."

"Take my advice, Don Oliver, do not try to discover the matter, for there is a sad story beneath it."

"You know her, then?"

"Perhaps so. I can only form conjectures, for the persons directly interested in that yoursely actions insist on maintaining the for the persons directly interested in that woman's actions insist on maintaining the deepest silence."

"Why, wait a minute," the Canadian said, hitting his forchead like a man who suddenly remembers something he had quite forgotten, and which an accidental remark revealed. "I believe now that Don Aurelio Gutierrez told us at the Hacienda del Bario certain facts connected with this person."

"To what are you alluding, senor?"

"Good gracious! I attached but slight importance to the narrative at the time, so that what I heard is very confused in my head. Still I think it referred to the extermination of an Indian tribe encamped on head. Still I think it referred to the exter-mination of an Indian tribe encamped on Den Annibal de Saldibar estates, and atro-cious revenge on the part of the Red Skins, in consequence of which the haciendero's wife became insane."

"Yes, all that you say is true. When Dena Essilia regained her reason she vowed Tes, all that you say is true. When Dena Essilia regained her reason she vowed an implacable hatred against the Indians, and since that period, if what is said be true, she has constantly pursued them without truce or mercy, hunting them down, and massacreing them like wild beasts."

and massacreing them like wild beasts."

"That is indeed extraordinary."

"The Red Skins, tracked by this lady, whom they believe to be protected by a charm, as she has constantly foiled their snares, and escaped unwounded from all their attacks, have conceived such a superstitious fear for her that her name alone, as you saw last night, is sufficient to cause them a wild terror and set them to flight, and as if rendering homage to the terror with which she has continued to inspire them, they have given her the name you heard repeated during the fight."

"The Queen of the Savannah?"

"Yes."

"I have often heard the Indians speak of thank you for your information caballero. But, viva Dios! I swear to you that I will force Don Annibal to tell me how matters really are; or, if he will not, I shall not hesitate to question his wife

"I doubt greatly whether you will be able to obtain even the shortest interview with her. She is constantly shut up in her apartments with her daughter. and several of her domestics even do not

You excite my curiosity the more,

"All the worse for you, cabellero," the count continued; "for admitting that you succeeded in seeing Dona Emila, I am convinced that she would not consent to answer any of the questions you thought proper to ask her."

 Ob, oh! that appears to me rather too strong; but no matter, I will not recognize defeat, and I pledge you my word that so soon as I return to the hacienda, I will try, by all the means in my power, to obtain the clue of the enigma.

"As you please, caballero. I have warned you, and have no right to check or encourage you in what you intend doing. Still, if I may be allowed to offer my advice in so serious a matter, I would invite you to refrain. It is not always prudent to try and interfere in propole's business against their interfere in people's business against their will, especially when it does not concern you

"I thank you for your advice, caballero though it is not in my power to follow it. But," he said, as he stopped his horse, and laid his hand over his forehead to keep off the sunlight, who is that coming down Any there Where?" the count asked, imitating the

There, in front of us; a horseman is oming up at full speed," would be possible "It is true," the count said; "I can just against an army.

What are you about ?

"What are you about?"

"As you can see, I am preparing to receive the coming visitor."

In the meanwhile, the horseman rapidly approached the Spaniards, and it was soon easy to see, by his dress and horse harness, that he was a Mexican. While galloping, this man made signs as if wishing to attract the attention of the travellers, and induce them to advance.
"I was not mistaken," the count said all

"I was not mistaken," the count said all at once; "uncock your rifle, caballero; you have nothing to fear, for that individual is one of my peons. What motive could have induced the countess to send off a courier?"

"We are going to learn," the Canadian replied, as he laid his rifle across his saddle-bow again, "for he will have joined us in five minutes."

In fact, the horseman shortly after accested them. He was a study teen with

In fact, the horseman shortly after accessed them. He was a sturdy poon, with sunburnt face and powerful limbs; he was well armed, and rode one of those prairie horses which European steeds can never equal. On coming up to his master, he stopped his horse so short that its four feet seemed to be suddenly welded to the ground, and, bowing respectfully to the count, he took from the China crape faja, tightly fastened round his hips, a bag of opossum akin, from which he drew a letter, and handed it to his master. The count opened the letter, but before reading it looked at the peon with ill-disguised anxiety, and said to him—

"Has anything new occurred at the haci-

Has anything new occurred at the haci

"Nothing, mi amo, that I know of at "The senora is not indisposed?"

"No, excellency; but on learning from the lancero, whom you sent to Leona Vica-rio, that you would probably pass the haci-enda on your return without stopping, she gave me this letter, and bade me make all

"Is that really all? You are telling the

"Is that really all? You are telling the truth, Diego Loper?"

"By my share of Paradise, excellency, I have told you all exactly as it happened."

"Very good—wait."

And, turning to the Canadian, he said—

breathed call joy and pure happiness in this desert, which, but a few hours previously, had been witness of a horrid scene of carnage.

As on the previous day the count and the adventurer rode side by side, absorbed in gloomy thoughts, and looking round them assendly and carclessly. At length the Canadian drow himself up, shook his head seeveral times as if to dismiss a troublesone thought, and turning to the count said, as if he were completing aloud an internal thought—"

"Yos," the count said with a sad smile, "dying is indeed the common law. But dring thus, far from one's friends, beneath the bullets of unworthy foes, without benefit to humanity—that is truly frightful, and what heaven ought not to permit."

"Do not murmur against Providence, senor. These men have fallen, it is true; but their death was not so useless as you seem to think, because it enabled you."

"That is true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help intying the fate of devoted ser"That is true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help intying the fate of devoted sersell yare, or, if we will not, shall be providence, send to this true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help pitying the fate of devoted sercell yare, or, if we will not, I shall not await the help which delivered you."

"That is true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help pitying the fate of devoted sercell yare, or, if we will not, I shall not have the help which delivered you."

"That is true, and I am wrong; still I cannot help pitying the fate of devoted sercelly are; or, if he will not, I shall not a large will not a second not a second not an analysis of part and part and a shall not far a shall shaded pelied to stop at my hacienda. Are you dis-posed to accept the poor rustic hospitality I can offer you, or will you continue your journey to the coided, under the guidance of Diego Lopez?"

"I am entirely at your disposal, senor, and will do what you think proper, as I am in no hurry; you shall decide my move-

"As you are so accommodating, we will said proceed to the hacienda. Diego Lopez, ride of on ahead, and inform your mistress of our life speedy arrival

The peon bowed, bent over his must-ck, dug his spurs into its sides, and started at a gallop.

"We need not hurry," the count said,
"for we are only two leagues at the most from the hacieuda."

"I will ride at your pace," the hunter replied; "besides, the sun is still high."

"The hospitality we have to offer will be sad, senor; family grief has, unfortunately, banished joy for ever from my hearth. I ask you, therefore, to excuse any formality which may be visible in the counters's re-

The Canadian bowed politely, and they ent on. In about an hour they perceived ie lofty and thick walls of a vast hacienda, have joined."

"Yes," the count said, with a sigh, "its at summer.

The countess displayed signs of great astomishment.
"Can it be true, Don Fadrique?" she said to the count, while looking inquiringly at Lim.

"Alsa" there was one ill-omened day on which these strong walls, defended by a garrison of brave and devoted men, could not save it from being taken by storm, and plundered by the Comanches."

The count heaved a deep sigh as he uttered these words. The hunter, afraid of saddening his host by dwelling on a subject which seemed so painful to him, tried to turn the conversation.

"Good gracious!" he said, "I did not no-tice before that the hacienda is entirely sur-tice before that the hacienda is entirely surrounded by water."

"Yes, the river has been turned so as to form a belt round it. Our ancestors, compelled continually to contend against the insurrections of the natives, who only assumed the yoke with great reluctance, built perfect citadels, and took their precautions against an attack. But here we are on the river bank; you must dismount and enter the beat; it is the only way of passing to the other side."

"I suspect," the hunter said, with a

"I suspect," the hunter said, with a laugh, "that there is another—a ford, for instance; but you do not care to show it to

"Perhaps so," the count answered, with a smile; "suppose there were, would you think me wrong?"

"On my word, no," said the Canadian; "war is a game like any other, in which the cleverer player has the best chance of winning "

While talking, they had dismounted, and handed their horses to the soldiers. At this moment the boat, pulled by two sturdy peons, came up to them; they got in, and in a few minutes found themselves on a sort of small quay, ten yards wide at the

"Come," the count said.

The hunter followed his host, and entered a narrow, rugged path which ran round the hill, and which foot-travellers could alone follow, as it was kept up so badly, perhaps purposely. At length, after ascending in this way for about a quarter of an hournot without halting several times to take breath, so rapid and abrupt was the incline—the two men reached the top of the hill, and found themselves in front of the hacienda, from which they were only separated by an abyss some twenty feet wide. A drawbridge, formed of two narrow planks thrown across the precipice, supplied them with a rather precarious passage, and they at length found themselves inside the fortress. 'Come." the count said.

Well, well," the hunter muttered, as he looked searchingly around him; "the persons inhabiting this house do not seem to me persuaded that peace will be durable."

CHAPTER XX.

DIRGO LOPEZ

The count did not give the hunter time to make many observations.

"Excuse me," he said, "if my behavior does not appear exactly in accordance with the claims of courtesy; but war may break out at any moment between the Spanish government and the Mexican patriots, and an ambassador, if he understands his profession, is always more or less a spy."

fession, is always more or less a spy."
"That is true," the hunter said, with a smile.

"You understand, I suppose, that I am not desirous to let you examine in detail fortifications which you may be ordered to attack within a few days."

"Quite true, senor. I did not think of least true, senor. I did not think of the senor.

"Quite true, senor. I did not think of that; your prudence is legitimate."
"However," the count continued, "be assured, senor, that, with the exception of the care I am compelled to take in hiding from you our resources and defensive measures, you will have no cause to complain of the manner in which you will be treated here."

"I am convinced of that beforehand,

Be kind enough, then, to follow me. I wish to introduce you to the countess."

"Do you consider that absolutely necessary?" the hunter asked, as he looked at his shabby clothes which displayed marks of scated on a sofa near a window whence scated on a sofa near a window whence a magnificent view was enjoyed, was a lady of a certain age, with a gentle and pleasing face, which must have been very lovely in youth. This lady, who was dressed in mourn-ing, was the Countess de Melgosa.

"My dear Dona Carmencita," the count said, "permit me to present to you a friend of one days stooding who has sayed my of one day's standing, who has saved my

"He is welcome to our sad abode," the lady said, as she rose with a peaceful and caim smile. "We will try, since he deigns to accept our hospitality, to render his stay in this isolated hacienda as little wearisome as we can."

"Madam," the Canadian answered, as he bowed with that natural courtesy which men in whom a false education has not destroyed nature possess to so eminent a degree, "I am only a poor; man, unworthy of the weak of the men of the me gree, "I am only a poor man, unworthy of the gracious reception you deign to offer me. If accident furnished me with the opportu-nity to do your husband a slight service, I am more than rewarded by the kind remarks. Unfortunately, on have addressed to me west on. In about an hour they perceived the lofty and thick walls of a vast bacienda, built on the top of a scarped rock.

"Oh, oh!" the hunter said, admiring the strength of this majestic building, "that is an admirable fortress."

"It is the hacienda to which I am taking you, senor, and of which I am the owner."

"Alss' malam, I am in despair. I should be delighted to forget here, for some time, the fatigue and dangers of a desert life, unfurturately, scrious reasons independent. owner."
"Viva Dios! I regret that a citadel like that is not in the possession of the party I Vicario as early as possible. The Senor have longed."

"Can it be true, Don Fadrique?" she said

"Indeed," he answered, "Senor Clary is in such haste to get to Leona, that if we had not been found by your messenger a few leagues from here, we should have conued our journey, without calling at the

"It is impossible!" the countess exclaimed, her face suffused with a hectic flush.
"Why so?" he continued.

he countess heaved a heavy sigh. Have you forgotten, then, Don Fadri-"she at length said, in a low and trembling voice, "that to-morrow is the anniver sary of the fatal day?"

"Ah!" the count exclaimed, as he sor-rowfully smote his brow, "forgive me, Dona Carmencita. In truth I cannot leave the hacienda to-morrow oh, no, not even if it were a question of life and death."

The hunter, who was greatly embarrassed, listened, without understanding a word, to this conversation in which he did not dare to take part, as he feared, if he spoke, he might make some mistake; but the count freed him from his embarrasement by turn-ing and saying to him— "I am sure you will excuse me, Senor Clary Reasons of the deepest gravity de-"I am sure you will excuse me, Senor Clary. Reasons of the deepest gravity demand my presence to-morrow at the hacienda, hence it will be impossible for me to accompany you to the governor and introduce you to him. But, though I cannot go myself, I give you in my place a person in whom you can place entire confidence, and I will join you at the cludad the day after to-morrow. It is in reality, therefore, only a trifling delay of four and twenty hours, which will in no way injure you."

"You know better than I do, senor, what it is best to do, hence do not put yourself.

it is best to do, hence do not put yourself out of the way for me, it will be all right if I am permitted to continue my journey

You can be sure of it.

"But," the countess said, ringing a bell, after the fatigues to which you have been exposed for two days, you must require a few hours' rest, senor; forgive me for not having thought of it sooner. Be kind enough to follow this peon, who will conduct you to the room prepared for you, and we shall again at dinner."

hunter comprehended that the coun tess desired to remain alone with her hus-hand. Although he did not feel the slightest need of rest, he bowed respectfully to the lady, and followed the servant. The latter led him in silence to a vast room, in which he invited him to enter, saying that he had three hours before him, which he could pass either in sleeping or smoking. In fact, a hammock of cocoa fibre was suspended in the room, and a mountain of cigars and cigarettes placed on a table. The servant merely told the hunter that he had better not leave his room, as he might lose his way. This was clearly saying to the Cauadian that he was regarded as a prisoner, or some-thing very like it; at least he understood it so. He shrugged his shoulders disdainfully, and made the peon a sign to leave him alone, which the other at once obeyed.

"By Jove!" the hunter said, as he lay down in the hammock, and lit a cigar, "it must be confessed that this Don Fadrique, this Count de Melesse, is a consensation. must be confessed that this Don Fadrique, this Count de Melgosa, is a somewhat mys-terious being, and guards himself with as much care as if he had a kingdom to de-fend; but what do I care? Thank heaven! I have not to stay here long, and have no intention of carrying his wigwam by storm."

He looked round and saw that not only had cigars been brought for him, but that refreshments had been added in the shape of several botas, containing pulque, mercal and Catalonian refine.
"Come," he said, "I was prejudiced against my host. He is decidedly a famous

After this consoling reflection the hunter rose and went to the table, doubtless with the intention of tasting the liquors upon it, and spending in the most agreeable way pos-and spending in the most agreeable way pos-sible the hours at his disposal.

The dinner was rather gloomy. The coun-tess was not present, but sent her apologies to the hunter, who was not broken hearted at her absence; for, in spite of the old lady's gracious manners, he felt constrained in her presence. When the dinner was ended the count reseated that it was impossible for ount repeated that it was impossible for him to accompany him on the morrow, but would give him a sure guide. He handed him a letter of recommendation for the go-vernor, and, after renewing to the Canadian his promise of joining him on the following day, he took leave of him for the night, and

The adventurer was not sorry to be alone. In spite of the count's attention he retained in his manner toward him a certain aristo-cratic hauteur, which hurt him, although it was impossible for him to display the disentisfaction he felt The B mostic who had already served him led Oliver to his room, and took leave of him after hadding him good night. The hunter, wearied more by the inactivity to which he was condemned for some hours than by his morning's ride, threw himself on the leatherovered frame which serves as a bed in all Mexican houses, shut his eyes, and speedily fell asleep.

At sunrise he woke. At the same moment the peon who seemed appointed to wait on him entered his room and announced that if he were ready all the preparations were made. Oliver asked to take leave of the master and mistress of the house, but, on being told that they could not receive anybody, he followed his guide without ask-ing him any further questions. The latter led him through several yards, took passages different from those by which the hunter had entered the hacienda, and took him out on the opposite side to the one by which he had come in. After crossing the draw-bridge the hunter turned as if to say good-bye to the guide, but the latter told him that he had orders to accompany him to the spot where the horses were, and they de-scended the hill by a track quite as rough as the one by which the Canadian had ascended on the previous day. On the opposite bank of the river, three horsemen, armed with long lances, one of whom held the hunter's herse by the bridle, were waiting motionless, ready to start at the first signal. In the leader of this little party the Canadian recognized with some degree of pleasure Biego Lopez, who was relatively an old sequaintance. When they had crossed the most, Lopez came to meet them.

"Shall we start, senor?" Diego asked the

"Whenever you please," said the latter, as he drew up by the side of his guide. They started at a gallop, and remained ent for a long tim

"Are we very far from Leona Vicario?" the hunter at length asked, feeling wearled of this silence and disposed to talk with his

"No!" the latter answered.

"No!" the latter answered,
"Well, you are no great talker, my friend," the Canadian continued.
"What is the good of talking when you have nothing to say—especially when in the company of a heretic?"
"A heretic!" the adventurer said, "hang me if that is true."

"Are you not an Englishman?"
"I? Not a bit of it."
"All strangers are Englishmen," Diego

Lopez said, sententiously.

"How famously you fellows are taught.
It is curious enough."

"And all Englishmen are heretics," the n continued, calmly.

Be kind enough to tell me," the hunter, with a grin, "who teaches you all these pretty things'

Why should I tell you?" For two reasons. In the first place, for personal satisfaction; and next, for my

'It is our priests." "It is our priests."

"Ah! Very good. I thank you. Why, my friend, if it causes you any pleasure, learn first, that I am not an Englishman but a Canadian, which is not at all the same thing; next, not only that I am no heretic, but at the least quite as good a Catholic as yourself, I flatter myself."

"I have better an assign true." Diego.

"Is what you are saying true?" Diego Lopez asked, as he drew close to the

Why should I tell a falsehood ?" "Well! why did you not tell that to E! enor Conde?"
"Tell him what?"

That you see a Catholic." Hang it, for the very simple reason that he did not ask me That is true; but no matter, it is a mis-

Because you would have been present at the anniversary service."

"What anniversary?"
"The one held every year at the hacienda in remembrance of the assassination of the brother of the Senor Conde, who was treach-erously killed by the Red Skins."

"I am really vexed that I did not know that sooner, for I should have made a point of attending that service. Stay, in order that you may not have the slightest doubt about me," he added, as he took out of his bosom a small silver cross, hanging round his neck by a steel chain, "look at this. Is heretic plaything?"
Good," the peon said, with evident satisfaction. "I see that you are a worthy man, and not a dog of an Englishman. Do you love the English?" faction.

I cannot bear them. "Our priests say that they will all be con-

I hope so," the Canadian said, with s raugh.

"They deserve it, for they are gringos."

"So we are friends?"

"Yes; and to prove it, I will give you a piece of advice, if you like."

"Out with it; it is always worth having."

"Must you absolutely see the governor directly you arrive?"

"Yes."

That is vexations.

Why so ?"
We'll" Diego Lopez said, looking at him with some hesitation, "do you know the name the people give the governor?"
"No, I do not; but tell it to me; I shall be glad to learn it."
"Well! they call him the Shark."

"Ah! an ugly name, especially if de

Oh, yes, it is deserved," the peon said, th an involuntary shudder. The hunter reflected for a moment

Then he said aloud-"And, now, what is the advice you wish

You will be damb ?"

As a fish; po on."
Well, if you will believe me, in spite of Pe ie letter my master gave you for the overnor, you will wait to present it to him ill the count has rejoined you."
"Confusion! then you suspect that I am

'Hang it, hang it, that is not re-assuring.
'I will lead you to a cousin of mine wh with a parend shrink, the adventurer replied seriously. "I thank you for your alvice. I see that the interest you feel in me induces you to give it me, but, unluckily, it is impossible for me to profit by it. I must present myself without delay to the governor, in spite of all the peril to which I may be expressed. Such was the disposition of the assembled arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, such as yell of rage and agony, Caspar, natives and visitors at noon of that important day, all under the highest degree of enthusiasm and interest in the result, when all were suddenly startled and delighted by the capture of the peril to which I may be expressed.

In an instant all was terror and confusion, which is a proving a strike, fell senseless in the arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a yell of rage and agony, Caspar, not a give it me, but, a limit a passed.

Such was the disposition of the assembled arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a yell of rage and agony, Caspar, covered with blood, staggered from under the three profit by the possible for me to profit by it. I may be such a finished and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda and her bridesmaid; while, a with a percent shrink a previous arms of Linda a thusiasm and interest in the result, when all a heavy crash forward on the earth, were suddenly startled and delighted by the study of a flourish of trumpets.

I shall take my precautions accordingly but I fancy that is the town we can see."

Yes," said the peon.

I shall feel obliged by your leading me thusiasm and interest in the result, when all a heavy crash forward on the earth. In an instant all was terror and confusion.

The next moment three trumpeters, in the result, when all a heavy crash forward on the earth. In an instant all was terror and confusion.

The prince sprang to his feet; Wilhelm dropped his rifle, and rushing to the side of his bride, caught her from Linda, and bore proceeded, a royal flourish.

Six ingers, in their full costume of green.

What means this fearful accore?" evied. exposed. But as a warned man is worth two,

"As you insist on it, I will lead you there," arm, followed next.

the state of the s or passion of covering their umbrellas, and rooms, and houses, everything, in short, with old European stamps, and buy them by thousands and millions. The Rhenish Mission, which has a station in China, collects these stamps and sells them at three shillings the thousand. For the money so acquired the mission educates such children as quired the mission educates such children as have been either exposed or sold as slaves by

"Here is the man," said the peon.
"Yery good," Diago Lopez answered lapected this year between the 12th and 15th the prince

THE WILD HUNTSMAN.

(CONCLUDED.)

"Oh, you are found, are you?" cried the "Oh, you are found, are you?" cried the jager, forcing his way through the bushes. "Good morrow to you both. Allow me to congratulate you on your greatly improved skill as a marksman. The prince, I hear, was quite astounded at your success this morning."

"Have you come here to tell me this?"
asked Wilhelm, rather petulantly.

"Not I, ifaith; I came here to call you to the village green, where you are wanted."

"By whom?"

"By his highness the prince. There's a

"By his highness the prince. There a dispute among the competitors how far your rifle carries, and we are all to have a trial."
"The competitors are jealous of your skill this morning, and think you have an unfair rifle, "heplied Caspar.
"If they had asked me yesterday how far your rifle carried, Wilhelm, I could have answered them in moment," added Killian, maliciously.

maliciously.

"And how, pro ?"

"By saying a file from the target, ha, ha, ha? But are yet coming, or must his highness stay all day for you?"

"You hear faspar, I am sent for. The prince may as me to fire again. Give me one—only one, ay friend. What, comrade, you refuse?" se said, speaking apart to Caspar.

Caspar.

Yes, one for all, I positively refuse.
Go to, frieg ; you are unjust, rejoined Caspar, turning round from his companion. the trial be kept for the trial."

"Upon mesoul, Wilhelm, if you don't treat a real live gince in the most cavalier manner I ever witnessed. Your temporary success, old fellow, has turned your brain. The cess, old fellow, has turned your brain. The prince has been waiting this half-hour for your honor's coming. How much longer will you keep his royal highness waiting."
"Go on, Killian, I follow."
"Oh, ye gods! how grand has our jager grown of late. This way, your excellency, this way.

this way.

And with mock ceremony, Killian led the ay towards the village, while Wilhelm codily followed. "The fool! the idiot! the worse than veiling dotard!" muttered Caspar, as with elbow resting on his rifle, he watched the arture of the young men. "To fritter departure of the young men. "To fritter away three of his bullets to amuse a foolish ince, and leave but one for a contest that ight need the whole—fool! Two of mine have recklessly expended in shooting a

I have recklessly expended in shooting a magpie and a wild cat; and the third I will put there." he added, after a brief pause, dropping it into his rifle, which he loaded.

"Yow it is past Secall. This makes the sixth. What's that?—a fox. So, Master Reynard, here's your warrant, already signed and ddivered," and he laughed, as aiming at the frightened animal, he fired, as the fox selled and account his will.

rolled dead across his path.
"Now, then, the last and secenth, the PATAL ballet, alone remains, and that is in the hands of Wilhelm—the fatal seventh!"

" Six bullets shall his will obey, The seventh is mine, to mar or stay."

"Good. Vengeance is mine! Zamie!, give me vengeance; 'tis all I ask—the only boon I seck—vengeance on my detested

And throwing his rifle over his shoulder, he plunged into the depths of the forest.

The hurrying of peasants in groups and singly across the woodland glades, in the direction of martial music, indicated the locality of the coming sports, and the trials of skill or skill.

A large enclosure on the outskirts of the orest, and close to the hamlet or village of Raubenzweld, was the place fixed upon for he day's ceremony.

At one end of the allotted space was creeted the marquee of the prince, with his bau-ner waving from the top. Barriers of red ropes, attached to tall stakes, were fixed in the ground, on both sides and behind which peasants were stationed to see the com-

Halfway up one side, in an opening of the barriers, was erected a dais, covered with red cloth, on which were placed two chairs, one of state, with a corenet at the back for one of state, with a cornect at the back to the prince, another less pretentious on the step below for the lovely prize of the competitors, the beautiful Bertha.

At the top, or farther extremity of the enclosure, was fixed the target, while a few feet distant grew a tall, full-leaved oak.

Wilhelm, and six companion jagers, all connections stood in a row, leaning on their

Wilhelm, and six companion jagers, all competitors, stood in a row, leaning on their rilles by the side of the dais, crowds of vil-lagers and peasants, men and women, all in gala costume, filled all the space behind the kune, the grand warden, in full uniform, with silver bugle and his wand of office, tollowed next, and then some of the prince's servants in state liveries, brought up the rear, while another deuble file of jagers completed the procession.

As the imposing cavalcade moved up the control of the plant, the growd on either side.

with his tall eagle feather noddly over his head, stood first in the

"In that case, good bye."

In that case, good bye."

In that case, good bye. "I look out there! What are you kicking my dog for?" "I'm kickin' him cause he's full of fleas, and I don't want to get em on my good clothes." "Fleas, the deuce! Why, that dog sleeps with me."

"A pleasant journey, benor Forastero," he said, with a mocking accent most offensive to the Canadian.

"Yes, darn you, I know it; and that's where he gets them."

"Toanks, thanks, my worthy friend."

"Toanks, thanks, my worthy friend." ing next to Bertha, and Kune and the servants by the side of the prince.

"Thanks, thanks, my worthy friends," cried Ottocar, rising, and, when the shouting had subsided, addressing the people.

"Many thanks for this cordial reception.
As for you, my old and trusts friend Konn. As for you, my old and trusty friend Kuno, I must needs congratulate you on your truly lovely daughter, the blushing bride, and so on the selection you have made of a on-in-law. I congratulate you on both a sign as he did so for the lover to approach.

"As for you, Wilhelm," Ottocar resumed,
"I hope the approaching trial will show that you are worthy of such a bride."

"I have no fear, your highness, of that," replied Wilhelm, confidently.
"I am glad to find you have so much self-onfidence, for, to speak the truth, I fear ou lack one great quality of a good jager," e added, sinking his voice to a whisper. "In what, your highness?" asked Wilhelm, with nervous anxiety.

"Self-possession, Wilhelm. This morning, when I was at a distance, your practice ing, when I was at a distance, your practice was wonderful; every shot went true to the aim, but when I sent for you from the wood, and stood at your side, every shot was a failure. Hush!"

"This time your highness may rely on me with confidence; I will not muss here," Wilhelm replied, as the blood mantled with shame to his cheeks, and bowing low to the prince he setured to his correction.

prince, he returned to his comrades, mut-toring to himself—
"It was because I would not use my last charmed bullet, and I dare not tell the

"Why, Bertha dear, where is your bridal wreath?" exclaimed her father.
"Is it not on my head? No, I must have left it behind in my confusion," she replied, greatly agitated by what she regarded as an

But I have a chaplet of white roses here in the village, which a holy hermit whom I prayed with this morning gave me, and begged of me to wear."

"Then fetch it by all means; our bride must be fully dreased," observed the prince. "Come, Linda, we shall not be gone more than a few minutes. And, curtseying to his highness, Bertha rose, and, followed by Linda and one of the bridesmaids, hurried to the top of the glade, and turned into the village, passing by the oak tree, beneath which Caspar was secreted. As the bride left the dais, Killian, doffing

As the bride left the dats, Killian, doming his hat, approached the seat of honor, and bowing respectfully, said.—"Will your highness grant me a favor?"

"If the request be not preposterous, I will. Speak," replied Ottocar.

"I will promise that. I say it to my shame, prince, I am a little given to a love of the wine-flask, and as I might, but for the request I bear the lady, have been a the respect I bear the lady, have been a

"I do not understand you."
"No, I am but a dull, stupid fool, and don't know how to speak; but it's this, prince. For fear that beautiful Miss Bertha might fall to my lot, I struck my name out of the list of candidates."

"If I understand you rightly this is a very honorable action on your part. Now what is it you want me to grant?"

"That your highness will allow me one shot for the honor of the village; not, re-member, to count for anything, but merely to show your highness that those seven, excellent shots as they are, don't comprise every man who can handle a ritle."
"Your request is granted, and to show my appreciation of your conduct, you shall fire the first shot.

"Don't be jealous, comrades; this shot on't count, it's only for the credit of the village-it isn't to count. "Enough! sound there; and take your

As the prince spoke, the trumpets blew a loud flourish; when Killian, bowing to Ottocar, took up his position at the mark, raised his rifle and fired.

"The bull's-eye-the bull's eye! Hurrah! for the honor of the village!—through the heart of the bull's-eye!" shouted the crowd, were before the perkers had declared the even before the markers had declared the fact.

"Come hither, Killian-for such I hear is your name," cried the prince, as the jager was about to retire.
"You are a capital shot, and a very good

"You are a capital shot, and a very good fellow; and as a mark of my esteem, accept this purse," and he placed a heavy purse of gold in the hands of the surprised and gratified Killian.

"Now, Wilhelm, as you are the first to fire of the seven, and Killian has destroyed the chief mark, you shall have a fresh aim. See, a small, white dove has lighted on the branch of yonder oak; make that your mark, and fire. Wilhelm, who had pointed at the target, instantly moved the piece to the new aim, is an arriere. You will remain concealed at his house till to morrow, and so soon as my master arrives I will warn you."

"My friend," the adventurer replied section will be as tree, where, without being easily seen himself, he could observe and hear all with a piercing shrick, fell senseless in the and fired, while the trumpets brayed out a

"I shall feel obliged by your leading me straight to the governor's palace."

Diego Lopez looked at him for a moment with an air of amazement, and then shook his head several times.

Proceeded, a royal flourish.

Six jagers, in their full costume of green and black, each with his bugle horn and obtain, and with two eagle feathers in his struck down, as by a mortal wound, her to the front of the dais. "What means this fearful scene?" cried obtain, and with two eagle feathers in his struck down, as by a mortal wound, her maidens weeping and wringing their hands, "What means this fearful scene ?" cried cap, and their rifles stung arm, followed next.

A number of gentlemen, friends of his highress, bareheaded, succeeded the pagers.
Prince Ottocar, leading Bertha in her bridal dress, and attended by Linda and a troop of lovely bridesmaids, floated by like clouds of fleecy white.

and you dark hunter streaments in pity open those ground."

"Look up, my Bertha; in pity open those heavenly eyes. Oh! in mercy speak to me. Give but one sign of life or consciousness, and save me from the agony of thinking I have murdered you!" exclaimed Wilhelm, as resigning her to her maidens, he knelt by on given and the conscious child.

"No, no, she is not dead; all saints be praised!" Cried Linda, rejoicingly. "See, she breathes, and once again opens her eyes.
Oh, my lady!"

With a heavy sigh, the bride slowly opened

"It is past: the hideons dream, and those gloomy forebodings that have so weighed me down, are past," murmured Bertha, with heartfelt thankfulness. "All have vanished every applicant. Male and female agents wanted in

"Look, look, your highness; I see it all "Look, look your highness; I see it all now," exclaimed Linda, as she and the bridesmaids led Bercha to her former seat, pointing as she did so to the coronal on her lady's head. "See, this blessed chaplet of white roses, which the holy hermit gave my mistress at matins, has turned away the ball, which, only stunning her, has glanced aside, and struck the gloomy and results the gloomy an aside, and struck the gloomy and r less Caspar."

"It must be so; has anyone seen whether you hunter lives or dies?"

yon hunter lives or dies."

"None will grumble at fate, your highness, should the devil at last have got his own, and Caspar should at the same time have got both bullet and billet," replied

"Wherefore?"
"Well, it has been surmised, your highness, that Caspar yonder is little less than a Frieschutz.

'Horrible, but impossible." "It may be horrible—but I am not clear as to the impossibility."
"Nevertheless, see whether the man lives

Stand back !" gasped Caspar, as Killian and his companion stooped to raise him; and he rose with difficulty to his feet.

"I want no aid. A thousand curses! she lives, and I am baulked of my revenge!" he cried, as he glanced at the happy Ber-tha grasping the hand, and smiling on his rival.

What means this mortal faintness? What—is it night, or do my eyes wax dim?" as the light of the sun was suddenly eclipsed and muttering thunder ran round the hea-

Why, why, at that thunder does this "Why, why, at that thunder does this awful dread possess me? Why? Ha! back, fiend, is it thou?" he cjaculated, as, turning round, the form of Zamiel, evident only to his own eyes, appeared beneath the "Back! avaunt! away! Over me you "Back! avaunt! away! Over me you have no power! Yonder is your victim, away!" and he staggered a step forward, striking the air with his cleuched hand.

"Ha, ha, ha!" and the horrid laugh of the demon chilled the heart's blood of every hearer. "Fool! hast thou forgot the compact?" he demanded fiercely—

"Six bullets shall his will obey

"Juggling fiend, but you have stayed it!" gasped Caspar, pressing his hand on his side.
"True, I have, but in thy breast—"

"Tis false!" he cried in choking accents, and flinging his arms wide apart. "Away, field! avaunt; thee and thy powers I both defy. Begone! Oh, horror, horror! Demon, I—I—die—" And throwing up his arms, while Zamiel's infernal laugh rang through the forest, a torrent of blood gushed through his lips, and Caspar fell dead on his face at the feet of Caspar fell dead on his face at the feet of the dread fiend.

"The jagers," began Killian, coming for-ward, after a pause, "have resolved to fore-go the contest, and yield the prize at once to Wilhelm, who, having been three times King of the Marksmen, is every way deserving of the lovely Bertha."

the lovely Bertha."
"They have nobly resolved, and we thank them," replied the prince, as the six discharged their rifles in the air, and shouted with one voice "Success, happiness, and long life to Wilhelm and Bertha, the pride of the jagers of Bohemia!" The sun instantly burst out in all its former glory, as the bride sank in the arms her lover, and the prince, breaking up sports, led the procession to the nuptial alar where Wilhelm was made happy with the hand of his beloved Bertha.

The story of Caspar, the Frieschutz, became from that hour a tradition of fear and horror, that has lived and will live as long as the Hartz Mountains or the Black Forest exist to inspire awe or excite the wonder of mankind. THE END.

"There is one kind of ship I always steer clear of," said an old bachelor sca-captain; "and that's courtship, 'cause on that ship there's always two mates and no

THE SILVER CHORD, a collection of iavorite Songs, Balade, Duets and Quarters, notorte Accompaniment. "The Home Ci lown by all as a most admirable compilation of p the planoforte, finds a fit companion in this for the planoforte, finds a fit companion in this rior collection of songs with plano accompanion songs that have become as household words in every community—with many new candidate public favor, not so well known but which anown will be appreciated, are all here. Ever having a plano and a voice will not fail to lot this book. One look will convince them that just what they want, and having purchased igiven it a more thorough examination, they will satisfied that "no plano is complete will Mailed, post-paid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
OLIVER Washington Street, Bostol 277 Washington Street, Boston. CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

DRINDLE'S PATENT AG-RICULTURAL STEAMER AND CALDRON, having had a test of afne years, has proved itself superior to any other arrangement for cooking food in large quantities for man or do-

AGENTS WANTED FOR

THE BLUE-COATS,

And how they Lived. Fought and Died for the Union, with Scenes and Incidents in the Great Re-bellion." It contains over 100 fine Engravings and 500 pages, and is the spicest and cheapest was book pub-lished. Price only $2.50 per copy. Send for circu-lars and see our terms, and full description of the work. Address JONES BROTHERS & CO., Phila-deiphia, Pa.

ADJES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOY-L.D. Picture basiness, Very profitable. No risk, Seventeen specimen Pictures and Catalogues sent for 40 cents, twice as many 30 cents. MANSON LANG 94 Columbia St., New York City.

SEWING MACHINE, attch are the WILSG SEWING MACHINE, attch are to both sid Samples on two weeks trial. Extra inducements experienced agents. Address A. B. McGl FFIE CU., General Agents, 513 Chestnut St., Philada., P. oct24-4t $2000 A YEAR, AND EXPENSES

neartfeit thankfulness. "All have vanished in a moment, and my heart once more feels light and happy. Oh, my dear Wilhelm!"

And with a beaming smile, she extended her hand to her kneeling lover.

S100 cent stamp, redeemable at my office, given every applicant. Male and female agents wanted in a new, pleasant, permanent business; fall particulars free, together with the 50 cent stamp by return mail. Sample retailing at $2.5 cent stamp by return mail. ALLEN, 48 New St., New York City. Inclose 3 cent stamp.

Remarkable Earthquakes.

Earthquakee are sudden and violent cocussions of the earth, generally attended with uncommon noise, both above and un-der ground. Considered in regard to the motion which is imparted by them to the surface of the surrounding country, they might be divided into three classes—the Vertical, the Horizontal, and the Rotary. These classes are not, however, sufficiently distinct to be treated of separately, and it is the purpose of the following article to give a general description of these phe-nomena, which are the most fearful of all calamities to which man is exposed.

Almost every part of the earth's surface is liable to be shaken by movements which take place in the interior, and are transmitted somewhat like a wave to distant regions. As a general law, the convulsions originate in volcanic districts; and the constancy with which volcanoes and earthquakes attend each other, is the best proof that can be given of their common origin.

Some countries—Central America, Chili, and Peru, for example—are so subject to these disturbances that the dwelling-houses are built low, having broad and substantial walls, with particular reference to these shocks. The most terrible earthquakes on take place in the interior, and are transmit-walls, with particular reference to those shocks. The most terrible earthquakes on record have taken place in Calabria and the neighboring island of Sicily. From February, 1783, to the end of the year 1785, that country was visited by a constant succession of shocks, no fewer than nine hundred and forty-nine being experienced during the first of these years, of which five hundred and one were shocks of the first degree of force.

degree of force.

The approach of earthquakes is heralded The approach of earthquakes is heralded by several symptoms of an unmistakable character. The air appears to be affected in some manner, and brute animals show their appreciation of this change by uttering loud cries and running wildly about. Human beings are sometimes affected with dizziness and a sensation similar to sea-sickness. A brother officer, who had never been seasick, was reduced to a most pitiable state of "earthquake sickness" on experiencing series of shocks in California some years ago.

Just before the shock the air is perfectly calm, while the surface of the ocean or lakes is much troubled; a sound like distant thun-der then breaks upon the stillness; or it may come at once like an awful explosion, as when, during a thunder storm, the flash and when, during a thunder storm, the flash and peal occur at the same instant; now the earth is violently shaken, the ground is thrown upwards or forwards as by the passage of an immense wave beneath it, and the work of destruction begins. The movements are sometimes so violent that large chasms are formed, through which torrents of restore are frequently special while occur. of water are frequently ejected, while occasionally smoke and flames appear—houses, trees, and animals are engulfed in these chasms, and by the subsidence of the sur-face, mountains and whole cities are swallowed up. Occurring, as they most frequently do, along the sea coast, it has been observed that the water generally retires to some distance, leaving the harbors dry, and then returns in a great wave, sweeping every-

The recent earthquakes on the western coast of South America furnish additional proofs of the tremendous force and destructiveness of these waves.

The effects of some of the modern earth-quakes have been of the most disastrous nature, and a few of the leading facts connected with them may very properly terminate this article.

nate this article.

The earthquake of Lisbon, in 1755, was one of the most destructive which ever occurred in Europe. It continued only six minutes, but in that short space of time upwards of sixty thousand persons perished. The phenomena accompanying it were no less striking: The sea first retired and laid the bardry; it then rolled in as a large wave, rising upwards of fifty feet above its ordinary level, causing great destruction. But the most remarkable circumstance which occurred was the subsidence of the new quay, red was the subsidence of the new quay, red was the subsidence of the new quay, called the Bays de Prada, to which thousands of the inhabitants had fled in order to escape from the falling buildings; not one of the bodies of these unfortunate persons ever came to the surface, and the spot is now covered by one hundred fathoms of water. Some idea of the magnitude of this state of the fact of the fact of the fact of the fact of the state of the fact of the fact of the state of the fact o water. Some idea of the magnitude of this earthquake may be formed from the fact that it was felt all over Continental Europe, and even in the West Indies and on Lake Ontario. Ships at sea were affected by the shocks as if they had struck on a rock; and at some of the Scottish lakes the water rose two or three feet above the ordinary level, and they subsided.

In 1811, violent shocks shook the valley of the Mississippi, causing old lakes pear, and new ones to be formed.

On February 20, 1835, the grand earth-quake of Chili occurred. When, three or four hours before the shock, flocks of seabirds were observed flying to the interior, although it was a cloudless morning, the weather-wise viewed it as ominous of a storm. At 11.40 A. M. the tremor began, with no noise, its violence increasing during with no noise, its violence increasing during the first half minute; meanwhile the rumble was heard, and at the end of that time the convulsive motion was so strong that the whole population fled to open places for safety. A minute after people could hardly stand, and in thirty seconds more an overpowering shock caused universal destruction. The undulations came from the south-west. When most excessive, besides the waving, or undulatory, there were also felt vertical, horizontal and circular motions.

By this disaster the city of Conception was, for the fourth time, reduced to ruins. Talcahuano was also in ruins; and from the summit of the island of Quiriquina a mass of rock, estimated at more than 25,000 tons, was hurled to the waters at its feet.

was hurled to the waters at its feet.

This earthquake was accompanied by the usual tidal waves, which came in about half an hour after the great shock. The sea retired about a mile, leaving in mud vessels which had been anchored in from four to five fathoms of water; a few minutes afterwards the first great wave approached in an unbroken wall of water thirty feet high. It broke ever everything; dashed ships about like boats; bore one vessel from the stocks, and left it high and dry over two hundred yards from the shore line; and finally rushed back with such force that everything movable was carried out to sea. A second and third wave followed, at intervals of twenty minutes, each equally destrucvals of twenty minutes, each equally destrucvals of twenty minutes, each equally destruc-tive in its effects.

The public have already been made fa-miliar with the incidents attending the re-cent earthquakes in South America, which were very similar to the one last described.

which was felt in Worcester, Mass. Our informant remembers that it occurred be-tween 1845 and 1830, being of sufficient vio-lence to cause doors to fly open, and great destruction among glass and china ware.— Ecessing Transcript.

OLD OAKS CEMETERY CO.

PHILADELPHIA.

RICHARD VAUX, President. PETER A. KEYSER, Vice President. MARTIN LANDENBERGER Treasurer. H. H. WAINWRIGHT, Secretary.

MANAGERS:

EVAN RANDOLPH, BENJ, BULLOCK, M. LANDENBERGER, RICH, C. RIDGWAY, JOS. F. TOHAS,

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26, 1868. THE "OLD OAKS" CEMETERY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26, 1868.

THE "OLD OAKS" CEMETERY

Is situated on the Township Line road, at the intersection of Nicetown line, and embraces Sixty-aise acres of romantically beautiful land. It is the estate known for many years as "Old Oaks," laid the contity east of John Tucker, Eq.

The name is taken from the great number and unusual thrift and beauty of the majestic "old oaks" trees now growing on the property, and which lend to it a charm and appearance of permanency peculiarly in harmony with the purposes to which the ground is dedicated.

No better selection of a location for a cemetry could have been made. All the advantages possessed by each of the other cemeteries are combined in this, it is central in situation, and easily accessible, by good roads, from all directions; it is perfectly convenient to, and is but a short distance from Germantown, Manayunk, Nicetown, Frankiord, and Bridesburg, and can be reached from all parts of the city of Philadelphia by means of Broad street, which is now the most attractive and commanding in appearance of any avenue, not only in this city, but in the whole country, and which is free from those interruptions and delays which render private travel on most of our highways not only disagreeable, but often dangerous. It extends for long distances on both Nicetown lane and the Township Line road, and will have three main and ornamental gateways, so as to afford facilities for ingress and ogress from all directions, and the drives through the place, and all the approaches to it, are so arranged that its embellishments and superciated by the visitor.

It is the intention of the propritors to make "Old Oaks" the most beautiful cemetery in America, and the artificial decorations, the lakes, drives, walks, and horticultural ornamental in the general propertion of the artificial decorations, the lakes, drives, walks, and horticultural ornamental to the friends and relatives of the deputed to visit the grounds with the character of the place; in a word, the proprietors wish during the day.

The office of the Company is at No. 413 CHEST-NUT Street, Room No. 1, where maps and plans of the Cemetery can be seen, applications made for lots, and desired information given.

nov7-R.

ESTEY'S COTTAGE ORGANS

POWER, POWER, and it takes LESS MONEY to buy them than any other INSTRUMENT
in the market.
Great inducements offered to Surday-schools and churches. A liberal discount madetaclesymen, Send

18 North Seventh Street

tried other springs in vain; and it has now gained a home and European reputation unequalled in so brief a period by any remedial spring in the world. It is claims are based solely upon its merits. It has a healing power, equalled by no other spring known, and analysis shows that it possessess properties found in no other. As there is a liability to confound this with other springs in the same vicinity, the bottles are marked in full: "*Vermont Spring, NAXE & CO., Skeldon, V.C."

Send for pamphiete.

The water is sold by the principal Druggists, and at the Spring, and by JOHNSTON HOLLOWAY & COWDEN, and by JOHNSTON HOLLOWAY & COWDEN, sep5-13t.

QUEEN OF ENGLAND SOAP.

Queen of England Soap. Queen of England Soap

$250 PER MONTH GUARANTEED.

Surr Pay. Salaries paid weekly. Agents wanted everywhere to sell our Fatest Everlatting Whate Wire Clothes Lines. Call at or address the Girard Wire Mills, Philadelphis, Pa. nov14-ft

$1000 PER YEAR guaranteed and steady in every comployment. We want a reliable agent in every comployment. We want a reliable agent in every comployment below the five Clothee Lines (Exercisating). Address WHITE CO., 75 William St., New York, or 16 Dearnove. E. HILTON, A. M., Gwyngen, Montgomor, S., Chicago, III.

WORK FOR THE WINTEH.—All that want employment for the winter, at $20 per week and expense paid, seiling new inventions, send 20 cents for sample that retails for $1, or etamp for circulars to the Union Manufg. Co., Marshall, Mich. oct21-21.

Rates of Advertising.

Thirty cents a line for the first insertion. Twenty cents for each additional insertion. Payment is required in advance.

(Established 1861,)

THE GREAT AMERICAN

Tea Company

AT CARGO PRICES.

CLUB ORDERS PROMPTLY SUPPLIED

INCLONG Black), 70c., 80c., 90c., best 41 47 h. has to be the property of the YOUNG HYSON (Green), 80c., 90c., $1, $1 10, best $1.25 UNCOLORED JAPAN, 90c., $1, $110, best $1.25 GUNPOWDER, (Green), best $1 to $7 tb.

Coffees Roasted and Ground Daily.

GROUND COFFEE, 20c., 20c., 30c., 30c., 4cct 40c. per lb. Hotels, Saloans, lieuxdur, house keepfen, and Families who use large quantities of Coffee, can economize in that acticle by using our FREN MI HREAN-FAST and DINNER COFFEE, which we said at the low price of 30c per pound, and warrant to give perfect actisfaction. ROAST-D (Curround), 30c., 30c., best 30c. W. B. GREEN (Unroasted), 20c., 30c., 30c., heat 30c. W. B.

We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire sat-

We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire satisfaction. If they are not satisfactory, they can be returned, at our expense, within thirty days, and have the money refunded.

CAUTION.—As some concerns, in this city and other places, imitate our name and style of adverting and doing business, it is important that our friends should be very careful to write our address in full, and also to put on the number of our Post Office Box, as appears in this advertisement. This will prevent their orders from getting into the hands of these bogus imitators.

GREAT AMERICAN TEA CO.,

Nos. 31 and 33 VESEY STREET. POST-OFFICE BOX No. 3643 NEW YORK CITY.

GENUINE

WALTHAM WATCHES

Greatly Reduced Prices.

Silver Hunting Watches

$18 00

Gold Hunting Watches, 18 karst cases 80 00

Gold Hunting Watches, Ladies' size 70 00

Every Watch warranted by special certificate from the American Watch Company.

The American Watch Company.

We will send these Watches by Express with bill to collect on delivery to any part of the country, and give the purchaser the privilege to examine the Watch before paying.

We have prepared a descriptive price list explaining the different kinds, with prices of each, which we will send to any one on application.

We invite a comparison of our prices with any others, and any Watch that does not give satisfaction may be exchanged, or the money will be refunded.

For Please mention that you saw this in the Saturday Executing Post.

Address in full.

BLOWARD & CO.,

Address in full, HOWARD & CO., sep5-tf No. 619 Brondway, New York.

These inventions stand approved as the "best" by the most eminent Scientific and Sugieal Societies of the world. The invention stand approved as the "best" by the most eminent Scientific and Sugieal Societies of the Midneys, Rhematism, Dyseppesia, Consumption, Salt Rheum, Syphilis, Discases of the Skin, the Eye, the Scalp, Nervous Frostration, Fe male Complaints.

It was discovered a little over a year since, and Immediately won distinction by curing invalids who had tried other springs in vain: and it has now gained a home and European reputation unequalled in so brief a period by any remedial spring in the world.

These inventions stand approved as the "best" by the most eminent Scientific and Suggient Societies of the world, the inventor having been honored with the award of FIFTY GOLD AND SILVER.

MEDALS (or "First Prizes"), Including the GIEAT McDALS (or "First Prizes"), Inclu

The well-known LINCOLN ARM is also made solely by this Company. This Arm has the patronage of the U. S. GOVERNMENT.

ANTED AGENTS $75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the GENUINE IMPROVED COMMON SENSE FAMILY SEWING MACHINE. This machine will attich, hen, fell, tack, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a does augerior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years, We will pay $1000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more clastic seam than ours. It makes the "Elastic Lock Stitch."

$2000 A YEAR AND EXPENSES TO experienced chairvoy and will, on receipt of 50 cents and examped envelope, and a written destinate on a needed trial. Extra inducements to experienced agents. For further particulars, address the Wilson Sewing Machine, For further particulars, address the Wilson Sewing Machine, Co., given while in a state of trance. None have written who were not surprised at the truthful of the furthful of the Wilson Sewing Machine, Co., given while in a state of trance. None have written who were not surprised at the truthful of the profit o

SUPERIOR IMITATION GOLD HUNTING WATCHES.

THE OROIDE WATCH FACTORY.

OROIDE CASES, a newly discovered composition, known only to ourselves, precisely like gold in appearance, keeping its color as ion; as well finished as the best gold ones. These watches are in hunting cases made at our own Factory, from the hest materials, of the latest and most approved styles, are seveled and well finished, with a view to the best results in great to wear and time. For appearance, durability, and time they have never been considered to keep accurate time. Frice $15$. Gentlement's and Ladies' sizes. For this any one can have an excellent watch, equal in appearance, and as good for time, as a gold one Sit. We are also manufacturing Ladies' and Gents watches of extra fine and superior finish. These are fully equal in appearance and time to gold ones coating two hundred colors. Also disc, as well made as those of gold, from $1 to $1. Goods sent to any part of the United States. Money need not be sent with the order, as the bills can be paid when the goods are delivered cons. Customers must pay ALL the express charges.

C. E. COLLINS & CO., 37 and 39 Nassau St., N. Y., Opposite P. O. (up stairs.)

[] T TO CLUBS,—Where SIX WATCHES are ordered at one time, we will send one Extra Watch taking SEVEN WATCHES FOR NINETY DOLLARS.

IIT CAUTION.—Since our Orolde Watches have attained so high a reputation, and the demand for them has greatly increased, many persons are offering common and worthless watches for sale, representing them to be Orolde Watches, in some instances stating that they are our Agents. We will state most positively that we employ no Agents, and that no one size does or one make Orolde; consequently these representations are false. The genuine Orolde Watches can only be obtained by ordering directly from as. oct3-3m

Dr. J. A. Sherman, Artistic Surgeon, respectfully notifies his patients, and the large number of afflicted persons who have called at his office during his absence, anxious to receive the aid of his experience, that he has returned from his professional visit to Havans, and will be prepared to receive them at his office, No. 6972 Broadway.

Dr. Sherman's inventions are the only established, secure, and comfortable radical curatives for Hernia, or Ruptore, in all its varied forms and stages, in persons of every age, without regard to the duration of the disease.

disease.

Dr. Surmman is the founder of the "Marado Graude," Havana, Cuba, established several years since for the treatment, by his method, of this most terrible of all human afflictions, where, from the good result of his personal attention, the afflicted, rather than trust themselves to the care of his pupils, await his periodical visits. at visite.

Descriptive circulars, with photographic likenesses of cases cured, and other particulars, mailed on receipt f two postage stamps.

PREMIER ARTISTE HAIR.

LATING WIG and ELASTIC BAND TOUPACES. Mass., you can save two or three profits on Dry Instructions to enable Ladies and Gentlemen to measure their own heads with accuracy.

He has always ready for sale a spiendid stock of Gents' Wigs, Toupees, Ladies' Wigs, Haif Wigs, Frizots, Braids, Curls, &c., beautifully manuscitured, and as cheap as any establishment in the Union. Letters from any part of the world will receive attention.

Private rooms for Dyeing Ladies' and Gentlemen's

Berkshire Life Insurance Co.,

PITTSFIELD, MASS.,

Offers QUEATER ADVANTAGES to Policy-holders than any company in this country.

INCORPORATED A. D. 1851. CHARTER PERPETVAL. T. F. PLUNKETT, President.

BENJ. CHICKERING, Secretary. JACOB L. GREENE, Asst. Sec'y.

Dividends paid annually, on the Contribution Plan, rom 20 to 70 per cent.
All the profits are divided among the Policy-holders. Dividends paid to Policy-holders this year $100,000.
The BERKSHIRE was the FIRST COMPANY IN the inited States to make ALL of its Policies NON-ORFERTABLE.

ORFEITABLE.
Every Policy issued by this Company since April,
D. 1861, is non-forfeitable, and so expressed to An Annual Payment Life Policy is not forfeited by failure to pay Premium when due, but it is continued in force under the Mussachusette Law of April, 1861.

EXAMPLE AT AGE 35.

WHY WILL YOU BE

ROBBED

by unprincipled dealers, when by sending direct to Inventor of the celebrated GOSSAMER VENTI. EASTMAN & KENDALL, 65 Hanover St., Boston,

For Wigs, Inches.
No. 1.—The round of the head.

" 2.—From forchead over the head to neck.
" 2.—From ear to car over the top.
" 4.—From ear to car round the forchead. n the same proportion when paid in other goods. Don't be by small dealers into believing that they can sell as cheap as we can, for it is simply impossible. Our popular ciub system of soiling is as follows: For $2 we send 90 patent pen fountains (10 cts. for each) and checks describing 30 different articles to be sold for a dollar each. 30 for $5; 60 for $6; 100 for $10, &c. Sent by mail. Don't full to send money in Registered Letters. Single fountain and check, 10 cts. Send for Circular and Exchange List.

CHEATED

N. B. Our sale should not be classed with dollar jewelry sales and gift enterprises.

EASTMAN & KENDALL,

65 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

BELCHER, JAMES & CO.'S Great One Dollar Sale.

THE MOST LIBERAL CONCERN OF THE KIND IN THE COUNTRY. IN THE COUNTRY.

The smallest article on our checks can be exchanged at any time for a splendid large Concertina, or a five-bottle revolving silver plated Castor, or twenty-four French Stereoneopie Vicion.

scopic Fields.

We have on hand over half a million dollars' worth of goods. The largest and most valuable stock of Linens, Woolens, Cottons, Flanmels, Bress Goods, Fancy Goods, Plated Ware, Cultry, Merschaurn Pipes, &c., &c., of ANY BOLLAR SALE House in America. We import our own goods, and can sell in other concern.

Nucleon annual payments will continue the policy in force theirty years and forty-one days.

Nucleon annual payments will continue the policy in force theirty years and foldays.

All Endowment and Limited Payment Life Policies are entitlected "Path Ur Son-Forfettark Policy," after one Ambual Premium has been paid.

W.M. H. GHAVES,
General Agent and Attorney for Penneylyvania, 329 WALNUT St., Philadelphia, Pa.

W.M. H. SMITH, M. D., Medical Examiner, febb-ly 813 SPRUCE St., Philadelphia, Pa.

TO AMERICAN TRAPPERS.

Being practically acquainted with the system of catching the Fox, Wolf, Beaver, Otter, Fisher, Martin and Mink. Also, receipts for making the best securits known to drawn the above animals to the traps. Any person in the United States sending me § 1.26, American currency, by mail, paid and replaced while received which I have been selling for the past four years, and so far as I am sware they have given general satisfaction. Address F. PENNOCK, Eigin P. O., Leeds Co., Outario, Canada.

CORNS BUNIONS, BAD NAILS, etc., cured by br. J. Briggs, 28 Broadway, etc., Proceeding in the same ratio. Promiumswent with goods.

CORNS BUNIONS, BAD NAILS, etc., cured by large the past four years, and for the past four years, and so far as I am sware they have given general satisfaction. Address F. PENNOCK, Eigin P. O., Leeds Co., Outario, Canada.

CORNS BUNIONS, BAD NAILS, etc., cured by large the past four years, and for the past four years, and for the past four years, and so far as I am sware they have given general satisfaction. Address F. PENNOCK, Eigin P. O., Leeds Co., Outario, Canada.

CORNS BUNIONS, BAD NAILS, etc., cured by large the past four years, and for the past four years, and for the past four years, and for the past four years, and four the past four years, and so far as I am sware they have given general satisfaction. Address F. PENNOCK, Eigin P. O., Leeds Co., Outario, Canada.

CORNS BUNIONS, BAD

Contract

WIT AND HUMOR.

Returning a Salute.

A most amusing story is told of Judge R, now occupying a high post in the Pennsylvania state government. Travelling, some years since, by rail to Harrisburg, on a blazing hot day, with some friends, the iron horse had stopped to water, when suddenly he drew his white handkerchief from his pocket, and began waving it vigorously is the air, at the same time bobbing his head out of the window in a very energetic manner.

at the same time booking its based of the window in a very energiete manner.

"What are you about, Judge?" asked Mr. Q., without rising from his seat.

"Why, don't you see yonder? There's a lady waving a white handkerchief, and I'm returning the salute."

"Who is she, judge?" asked Mr. Q., as he longed in one corner.

"Who is she, judge? asked M. Q., as ne lounged in one corner.

"Well, the fact is, I don't exactly know; I'm quite near-sighted, and I can't recognize her; but she is dressed in gray silk, and stands yonder, under a big maple tree, near my friend John B.'s house."

Mr. Q. hobbled over to the judge's side and gazed in the direction indicated, but saw only that the judge had been exchanging salutes for ten minutes with an iron-gray.

salutes for ten minutes with an iron-gray mare, whose long white tail, as it flapped away the flies, had been taken by him for a white handkerchief, waved by a lady in a gray silk dress.

The buttons that were subsequently picked up in that car are said to have been exceed-ingly numerous. The judge didn't swear, but he changed the subject to sawmills, the only intelligible portion of which being the frequent repetition of the word "dain."

The Point of View.

How exclusively and religiously the small English tradesman sees the events of the world only as they can have any influence favorable or detrimental to himself, is fully illustrated in the story of a scientific ce-lebrity. During his sojourn at Norwich for the British Association, the thought struck him to take a round of the city incognito, after the manner of Haroun el Raschid, and endeavor to discover for himself how the proceedings of the Association were regarded by the inhabitants at large. Thinking a by the inhabitants at large. Thinking a barber's shop was a likely place to discover the state of popular opinion, he entered one and desired to be shaved. As the operation proceeded he led the barber on to the topic uppermost in his mind, and presently asked point blank what the good people of Nor-wich thought of the Association, and whether they were not delighted at having among then so many clever fellows, especially as the honor brought with it so much profit. "Well, for my part," replied the barber, "I don't think nothing of it, least ways it ain't profited me much. Two-thirds of these clever fellows don't shave, and the other third shaves themselves." The doctor paid his threspector and returned home if not his threepence, and returned home if not wiser, in a decidedly more subdued frame of Josh Billings on Grasshoppers.

The Bible sez, "The grasshopper is a burden, and I never knu the Bible tew say any thing that wasn't so. When the grass-hopper begins to live they are very small, but in a little while there gets to be plenty of them. They only live one year at once, and then go back and begin again. Their best gait is a hop, and with the wind on their quarters they can make some good time. They are a sure krop to raise, but some years they raise more than others. I've seen some fields so full of them that you could not stick another grasshopper in, unless you sharpened him teu a pint. When they get so plenty they are apt to start, and then they becum a travellin' famine, and leave the road they take as barren as the inof a country church during a week day Grasshoppers don't seem to be actually no cessary for our happiness, but that may be we don't even know what we want most. I don't want grasshoppers entirely out, not if they are a blessing, but I have thought its myself) if they would let gruss and corn-stalks be and pitch into the burdecks and Canady thistles, just to encourage the fight, I wouldn't care a cuss if they both got finally licked. But my best judgment would be to bet on the grasshoppers."

Whist, man! Don't mintion it. Ye don't know Bridget O'Reilly. Wuns't she heard of it, not a wink of shlape should I get till I done it, and thin had luck to Pat! She'd with kindness; and dhrink her self to death with the money.

Make Room.

Mark Twain tells the following story of ne of the small republics of South America: There was war in one of these little re-publics—the one I have been describing. The General in Chief asked the President for three hundred men; the President or-dered the Minister of War to furnish them; the forces—just the number wanted—were down on the seasonst somewhere. The Minister of War requested the Minister of the Navy to place the navy of the republic at the disposal of the troops, so that they might have transportation to the seat of war. The Minister of the Navy (an official who had seen as little of ships and occans as even Mr. Secretary Welles sent a courier to where the schooner was, with the necessary order for the Lord High Admiral. The Lord High Admiral wrote back:— "Your Excellency: It is impossible. You must be aware that this is a 60-ton schooner.

There is not room for three hundred men in GREAT ASSURANCE.

SISTER .- "I say, Bob, that looks like a tailor's bill !" Bon.—"Yes—just fancy! I have let that fellow dress me as he likes for the last three years, and now he has the impudence to send me his bill!"

THE PAINTED WALL.

At the end of every road there stands a wall,

Not built by hands—impenetrable—bare.
Behind it lies an unknown land. And all
The paths men plod, tend to it, and end there.

Each man, according to his humor, paints
On that bare wall strange landscapes;
dark or bright,
Peopled with forms of fleuds, or forms of Hells of Despair, or Edens of Delight.

Then, to his fellows "Tremble !" or "Re-The limner cries, "for lo, the Land be-

And ever, acquiescent to his voice Faint echoes from that painted wall respond.

But, now and then, with sacrilegious hand, Some one wipes off those painted landscapes all Muttering, "stand, "Oh, fools, and slow to under-Behold your bourne—the impenetrable wall!"

Whereat, an eager, anger'd crowd exclaims, "Better than you dead wall—tho' pale and faint— Our faded Edens! Better fiends and flames, By Fancy painted in her coarsest paint

On the blind, bald, unquestionable face Of that obstruction, than its cold, unclad, And callous emptiness, without a trace Of any prospect either good or had.

straightway, the old work begins again Of picture painting. And men shout, and

For response to their pleasure or their pain, Getting back echoes from that painted Living Tapestry.

The fellowing adventure happened in Bath in the year 179-, and the lady who narrated it to the writer was (in those days) bet on the grasshoppers."

Fear of Life Insurance.

The following dialogue between an insurance agent and a well-to-do Irishman is related:—

a young gul staying in the house. It was in the palmy days of Bath, when that now fallen city rivalled London in brilliancy and sissipation, and when all the rich, the gay, and the high-born of England congregated there in the season and graced the balls and sembling. Mrs. R. ... once the belle of "Pat, you are making plenty of money; why don't you insure your life?"

"And what is that?"

"The season and graced the balls and assemblies. Mrs. R.—, once the belle of the court of George III., but at this period gradually retiring from general society, pos-"And what is that "
"Why don't you take out a policy of in arance on your life !"

"And what is that "
"Why don't you take out a policy of in arance on your life !" surance on your life?"

"Because I don't see the pelicy of it.
Shure, I must die, policy or no pelicy."

"You don't understand. If you insure your life now, when you die the company will pay your wife enough to keep her and your children from want and suffering."

"And that would be insuring my life! "And that would be insuring my life! shure I am after thinking it would be insuring Bridget's and the childer's. And how much would they give her?"

"That would depend upon the premium. Say a thousand dollars."

"A thousand dollars."

"A thousand dollars."

"A thousand dollars."

"Bely mother! Whist, man! Don't mintion it. Ye don't know Bridget O'Reilly. Wuns't she heard. size, it filled up the whole space between the two windows, and the horses were concealed behind the high old-fashioned Venetian hooking glass, while Phebus himself, six feet high, looked down by day and by night booking glass, while Phobus himself, six feet high, looked down by day and by night at his mistress at her toilette.

One evening Mrs. R—— had an unusually large party at home. She were all her amethysts. On retiring to her room, about four of clock in the morning, she took off all her jewels, laid them on the table, and dismissing the weary maid, intended to put them away herself, but, before doing so, knelf down, as usual, to her prayers. While engaged in her devotions, it was a habit with her to look upward, and the face of Phebus was generally her point of sight, as it were, and the object on which her eyes most easily rested. On this particular night, as plant as nearly on the surface as possible. easily rested. On this particular night, as usual, she raised her eyes to Phoebus. What does she see? Has Pygmalion been at work? Has he filled those dull silk eyes with vital fire? Or is she dreaming? No. Possessed naturally of wonderful courage and calmness, she continued to move her lips as if in be silent prayer, and never once withdrew her as they would a crop of corn, but the pr raze, and still the eyes looked down on hers. The light of her candles shone distinctly on living orbs, and her good keen sight enabled her, after a cleverly managed scrutiny, to see that the tapestry eyes of Phœbus had e that the tapestry eyes of Phobus had en cut out, and that, with her door locked The stern old salt in the navy office wrote back:

"Impossible—nonsense. Make room.

Heave the tons overboard and bring the sunk in her hands,

We can well imagine what those prayers must have been! She knew there was some one behind that tapestry; she knew that bells and screams were equally useless, and she lay down in her bed as usual and waited the issue, her only omission being that she did not put away her jewels. "They may save my life," she said to herself, and she closed her ever. The clock struck five her. closed her eyes. The clock struck five be-fore a sound was heard, and then the monent arrived. She heard a rustle, a descent from behind the tapestry, and a man stood at her dressing-table. He took off his coat, and one by one he secured the jewels be-neath his waistcoat. What would be his next move? Would it be to the bedside, or to the window? He turned and approached her bedside, but by that time she had seen enough, and again closing her eyes resigned herself to the Providence whose protection she had just been craving. The man was her own coachman. Apparently satisfied by a brief glance under his dark lantern that he had not disturbed her, he quictly un-locked the door and left her. For two hours they must have seemed two days-she allowed the house to remain unalarmed, her only movement having been to relock the door which her living Phœbus had left ajar.

At seven in the morning she rang her bell, and ordered the carriage round immediately after breakfast. All this was according to her usual habits. On the box was the man who had cost her a night's rest, and most probably, all her jewels. However, she drove off; she went straight to the house of a magistrate. "Seize my coachman," said she; "secure him and search him. I have she; "secure him and search nim. I have been robbed, and I hardly think he has had time to disencumber himself of the jewels he has taken from me." She was obeyed, and she was right. The amethysts were still about him and he gave himself up with-

An old doctor of divinity in Canada that, calling one day at a friend's house a little girl was sent in to amuse him until her mamma was ready. The child told him, among other things, that she had been writing a paredy on Kingsley's song of the "Three Fishers," but, when drying it at the open fire, it dropped from her hand and was was burned. "Burned," exclaimed the doctor; "if I had been the fire I should have stopped till you had got it out again." "Oh, no, doctor," said the child gravely, "you could not have done that. Nature is nature, you know, and her laws are inviolable. cked the doctor off his chair.

seking glass, white Thursus stress at her tolette.

One evening Mrs. R.— had an unusually those stress at her tolette.

She were all her ametric forms the surface are rotten. The inches from the surface are rotten. That inches from the surface are rotten. That inches from the surface are rotten. plant as nearly on the surface as possible. There is nothing more satisfactory than a dwarf Pear orehard managed properly, and at the same time nothing more than the dwarf Pear as grown by those wh do not or will now grow them as they shoul Most people treat the dwarf Pear just course is about as opposite as can we imagined. Dwarf Pears should be set c than they are usually, say ten feet apart.

They can then occupy the ground exclusive-ly without any "begrangement."

Pears, apples, and cherries generally do well fall planted. Store fruits north of the Stove fruits north of the how little to cut away. Usually all that is necessary is to cut with a view to the future shape of the tree.

shape of the tree.

Where the grape and raspberry do not ripen their wood thoroughly, they are liable to winter kill. In these cases they must be laid down, and protected with earth. Previously the immature wood should be cut away. Plum or cherry trees which have away. Plum or cherry trees which have been so neglected as to be covered with knots, may be renovated. Cut away at this season all the parts affected, then in May next, watch for the first appearance of the swellings and rub them out with finger and thumb—as they appear. It is astonishing how easy this wickedness of the plum and cherry can be made to cease from troubling, and how with fruit one shall be blest.

Apples, quinces and plums should be examined before frost sets in, and if any borers have effected a lodgment—a jack-knife and a strong piece of wire are all the implements necessary; a man will go over several hundred trees a day. It is a cheap way of preserving trees. If many of the remedies proposed by correspondents in our paper have been tried and found effectual, such as tobacco stems, &c., there will be few borers to deal with in the examination. few borers to deal with in the examination

In cultivating raspberries on a large scale, they do best in hills, as the cultivator keeps they do best in fills, as the cultivator keeps them from crowding each other so much. For garden culture they are better in rows, the suckers to be kept hoed out occasionally as they grow; enough only being left that will be required for fruiting next year. Where canes are required for new plantations, of course a portion of the crop must be sacrificed to the suckers.

Strawberries are much better when probe sacrificed to the suckers.

Strawberries are much better when protected through the winter, no matter how "hardy" they may be. Very coarse straw manure is the best material, which can be raked off in early spring. A few inches is sufficient, just enough to keep the sun off when frozen, which all our readers know by this time is the chief cause of the loss by frost—Gardener's Monthly. frost. - Gardener's Monthly.

How Much. How much better is your farm than it was one year ago? How much better are your implements? How much more lovely have you made your home by the planting of trees and shrubs? How much have you added as the street of the street was a street of the street o trees and shrubs? Hew much have you added to the value of your property by the planting of orchard trees and the small fruits? How much better is your stock of horses, of sheep, of cattle? How much of error have you discovered in your mode of treatment of the different crops you have grown? How much have you learned from your neighbors, from your agricultural papers, from your, experience in relation to pers, from your experience in relation to your farm operations? How much have you done to aid your wife and daughters in their household duties by furnishing them with improved household utcasils and the better location and arrangement of wells, cisterns, walks, wood-piles, cellars and dairy rooms? How much of kindness and charity have you exercised toward the needy and the help-less? How much better husband, father, brother, man are you than you were one year ago? Now is the time to reflect upon all these things.—Prairie Former.

TO CONQUER BEES .- The statement we have often seen made, that bees can be we have often seen made, that bees can be immediately scattered by sprinkling them with cold water, receives confirmation in the fact communicated to us by a reader at Weeks' Mills, who states that a horse belonging to Mr. Nason, of that place, was badly stung September 8th, and doubtless been killed had not cold water been poured upon the bees. Our correspondent adds: "It is a good weapon to fight them with."

—A process has recently been naterated in —A process has recently been patented in England by which the bran of flour, after being separated, is ground into an impalp-able powder, and then again mixed with the flour. In this way all the nutritious ingredients are preserved, while the fineness of the flour is not affected.

-Advices from Egypt represent the cotton crop of the present year as enormous. England is the principal market for Egyptian —Flour was recently passed on board a steamer at St. Louis from an elevator at the rate of 106 barrels in four minutes.

—A young ladies' Seminary in Rochester, N. Y., has arranged to have the elements of ing taught as one of the branches of pale education.

The Essex Banner asserts that small has been blind for a number of years, recently husked sixty-three and one-half bushels of corn in one day. He also threshed TOAST AND CHEESE,—Cut a slice of bread bushels of corn in one day. He also threshed one hundred and twenty bushels of oats in about half an inch thick; pare off the crust, three days.

RECEIPTS.

BAKED FRESH PORK.—Take a leg of resh pork, skin it, put it in a vessel. Take fresh pork, akin it, put it in a vessel. Take salt, pepper, two tablespoons of vinegar, four tablespoons of sweet oil, four bay leaves, four sage leaves, and a gill of white wine, and with this mixture baste the lea everal times a day, for three days or so, and then bake it, well done.

Fish-Cake.—Put the bones of the fish, with the head and fins, into a stew-pan, with about a pint of water; add pepper and salt to taste; one good-sized onion, a handful of sweet herbs if you like, and stew all slowly for about two hours. Then mince slowly for about two hours. Then mince fine the clear meat of the fish, mixing it well with bread-crumbs and cold, mashed parsley; season with salt and pepper to taste, and make the whole into a cake, with an egg well beaten up. Brush it over lightly with white of egg, and strew with bread-crumbs, and fry of a rich amber brown. Strain the gravy made from the bones, etc., and pour it over; stir gently for ten minutes or a quarter of an hour. Serve very hot, with garnish of parsley and lemon slices.

FISH-CAKE AGAIN.—Carefully remove the ones and skin from any fish that is left from dinner, and put it into warm water for nort time. After taking it out press it, and beat it in a mortar to a fine paste a short time. with an equal quantity of mashed potatoes; Pruning is generally thought very necessary, and to be a great art, which it is—but the greatness of the art consists in knowing

THE RIDDLER.

I am composed of 8 letters

My 4, 2, 3, is a Spanish title of nobility.

My 7, 8, 1, is a kind of tree.

My 8, 2, 5, 3, 4, is an arm of the sea.

My 1, 2, 3, 2, 6, is more valuable than gold.

My 1, 7, 3, 4, is a part of the body.

My 8, 5, 3, is a heavenly bedy.

My whole is a country in South America.

A. L. ROCKY

Hebus.

The god of the Asiatic Tartars. A precious atone.
The goddess of fire.
A title of dignity among the Turks.
A celebrated Egyptian statue.

An ancient name of England. A water spirit. festival of the Christian church.

An Italian silver coin. A plant.
A dictionary.

An aromatic plant. A bird. A musical instrument. A figure whose angles are equal.

A color. A native of India. A celebrated mountain in Greece.

The ancient royal standard of France.

An angel. A steward. A mineral.

A game. A fabulous region. My whole is a quotation.

Castle Dangerous, Arcadia.

Problem.

It is required to find a sum of money, of which, in the space of 4 years, the true discount, at simple interest, is $5 more at the rate of 6 than of 4 per cent. per annum.

W. H. MORROW.

Irwin Station, Pa.

An answer is requested.

Mathematical Problem.

There is a field of grain, containing 24 acres, whose shape is an oblong square, measuring around its four sides, or the perimeter thereof, 248 perches. I am entitled to 8 acres and 64 perches thereof. Who can tell me how broad I may reap off around the field, equal breadth from all the four sides of said field, to harvest my part and no more? HILDEBERT KOBEL.

An answer is requested.

Geometrical Problem.

In one side of a conical pile of sand, which was 4 feet high, and 5 feet through at the base, a perpendicular rod was inserted to the ground, one-half of the rod penetrating the sand and one-half remaining above; the top of the rod and top of the sand pile were found to be 2 feet asunder. Required the length of the red. Required the length of the rod.

JOSEPH S. PHEBUS. Nebraska City, Nebraska.

An answer is requested.

Conundrums. What class of city people raise the most flour? Ans.—The Bakers.
Which are the most affectionate innes, Ans.—When everything is as dear as it can be.

 What is the first thing we swallow and the last we give up? Ans.—Breath.

 Does the brow of a hill ever become wrinkled? Ans.—We have often seen it furrowed."

What sticks won't bear whittling? Ans, -Fiddlesticks.

Answers to Last.

ENIGMA—Eva, Brinley's Station, Ohio. BIBLICAL ENIGMA—"The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it." CHARADE—Baltimore.

HASHED BEEF OR MUTTON .- Slice and HASHED BEEF OR MUTTON.—Slice and brown one large onion with a small piece of butter in an iron saucepan; then add one teaspoonful of moist sugar, which also brown well. Mix in a small cup a dessert-spoonful of flour with a little water. Pour this into the saucepan, mix well, and add a breakfast cupfull of good plain beef or veal AGRICULTURAL.

Truit Garden.

One of our first articles in the Gardener's Monthly, was one to warn our people against prevailing systems of fruit culture, which prevailing systems of fruit culture, which be effected.

Our advice was provided in the Gardener's be effected.

The duantities of sunflower seed mixed with the food of a horse will impart a fine gloss to his hair, while it is also a certain cure for founder, if given immediately after the ailbrown well. Mix in a small cup a dessert-spoonful of flour with a little water. Pour this into the saucepan, mix well, and add a breakfast cupful of good plain beef or veal about a pint of seed should be mingled with the food of a horse will impart a fine gloss to his hair, while it is also a certain cure for founder, if given immediately after the ailbrown well. Mix in a small cup a dessert-spoonful of flour with a little water. Pour this into the saucepan, mix well, and add a breakfast cupful of good plain beef or veal about a pint of seed should be mingled with the food of a horse will impart a fine gloss to his hair, while it is also a certain cure for founder, if given immediately after the ail-brown well. Mix in a small cup a dessert-spoonful of flour with a little water. Pour this into the saucepan, mix well, and add a breakfast cupful of good plain beef or veal about a pint of seed should be mingled with the food of a horse will impart a fine gloss to his hair, while it is also a certain cure for founder, if given immediately after the ail-brown well. Mix in a small cup a dessert-spoonful of flour with a little water. Pour this into the saucepan, mix well, and add a breakfast cupful of good plain beef or veal brown well.

> and toast it very slightly on one side, so as just to brown it, without making it hard, or of an inch thick, not so big as the bread by half an inch on each side; pare off the rind, cut off all the specks and rotten parts, and lay it on the toasted bread in a cheese-toaster; carefully watch it that it does not hum and stir if with a spoon to prevent a burn, and stir it with a spoon to prevent a pellicle forming on the surface. Have ready good mustard, pepper, and salt. If yo serve the directions here given, the will cat mellow, and will be uniformly If you ob and the bread crisp and soft, and will well deserve its ancient appellation of a "rare bit"

IRISH STEW .- Take a piece of loin or back-ribs of mutton, and Put it in a stewpan with pared, raw pota toes, sliced onious to taste, pepper, salt, and a little water. Put this on to stew slowly for an hour, covered very close; and shake it occasionally, to prevent it from sticking to the bottom.

CHARLOTTE OF APPLES.-Put one quart CHARLOTTE OF AFFLES.—Put one quart of cored and peeled apples, half tablespoon of sugar, half gill of water, piece of cinna-mon, in a saucepan. Cook. Then strain it through a culander. Line a tin mould with bread crumbs, using melted butter to stick them on. Put in the

Put bread crumbs on top; and set in the oven.

When well baked, reverse the pan or mould

on a dish and the apples comes out shaped, ready to serve. PLAIN WHITE CAKE. - Cream a season to taste. Then make up the mass into round, flat cakes, and fry them in butter or lard till they are of a fine golden-brown color. Be sure they do not burn. Cod-fish is excellent recooked after this fashion. or rose-water.